Dillinger Raids

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, April 30.—Four men, one identified by police as George "Babe" Nelson, Dillinger lieutenant, fought two gun battles with suburban police today and escaped.

At Belwood police chased a car when it failed to observe a stop-light.

The other gunmen "covered" the policemen while his aid disarmed them.

St. Paul, April 30.—With all clues exhausted and a painstaking search of the "Twin Cities" completed, department of justice agents and police today were marking time awaiting new leads concerning the whereabouts of John Dillinger and his gang of guerrillas.

While officers are unwilling to admit that the desperado and his mob have broken through the cordons of guards around the St. Paul area, it was apparent that Dillinger and his aids have deserted their previous haunts.

Underworld sources of information, police said, have either "dried up" or lead them on fruitless chases. Hides where Dillinger or members of his gang are known to have stayed in the past, have been under surveillance for days, but today officers were recalled from these "plants."

While the law continued its relentless search for Dillinger and his gangsters, Chicago sweetheart, Evelyn Frechette, her cell in the county jail here, awaiting arraignment on the federal indictment returned Saturday charging her with conspiracy to harbor Dillinger.

Baseball and softball will get under way in full force with a few spring days like that in evidence today.

Young Pa. New observed this morning that the water fountain on the corner of East Long avenue and Mill street was broken down. The writer later learned that an automobile crashed into the fountain late Saturday night.

Pa. New noted the smoke from a number of grass fires in the district Sunday. There was one in the neighborhood of West Pittsburgh, and one along the Shenango river near the Water Works.

First Congregationalists Observe Anniversary

A day that will linger long in the memories of the First Congregational church members was the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of its founding, which took place Sunday, beginning with the Sunday School service at 9:45 when many out of town and former members began to arrive to participate in the day's program.

The service at 10:30 was conducted in the Welsh language with the pastor, Rev. Rees T. Williams, presiding. Mrs. D. B. Jones of Alliquippa, sang a touching Welsh song "Where Is The Amen" and the men's chorus, led by Dave Lewis, sang "Echoes of a Welsh Prayer Meeting."

The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Rees T. Williams as chairman and the Rev. W. Sniff of the Madison Avenue Christian church leading the devotionals. A miscellaneous program marked the afternoon, with brief excerpts of the church history given by Rev. Williams, telling of the influx of Welsh people to New Castle and how the Welsh life is built around their church life, how in 1893 the Welsh, with determination and grit, set to work to establish a church for themselves.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 30.—As the state drew toward the end of its case today against Murton and Irving Millen and Abe Faber, on trial for murder, it seemed probable that 19-year-old Norma Millen, pretty bride of Murton, would appear only as a "ghost witness" for the defense.

Over the weekend, Norma, jailed on the charge of being an accessory after the fact, submitted hysterically to an examination by an alienist for the defense.

William W. Belton, 311 West Madison avenue and a friend who was riding in his auto about midnight last night was held up by a colored man along the West Pittsburgh road.

Belton reported to city police his car was just outside the city limits when he noticed a flashlight signal to stop.

He did and a man with a white handkerchief for a mask stepped forward and pointed a revolver at him. Belton was ordered from the car.

While the man had him held up, the handkerchief slid from his face and Belton saw he was a negro.

The man took $4.85 and ordered him to drive on then fired the bullet to show the revolver chamber was loaded and to intimidate the victim.

Mass Meeting Is Planned For Thursday Night

Co-operative Workers To
Of RWD Work

DUFFORD HEADS NEW ORGANIZATION

Situation Is One Affecting All; Believe State Getting Worst Of It

Officers were elected Saturday afternoon by the newly formed Co-operative Workers of America, which organization contains the workers of the old CWA, the more recent RWD and all unemployed.

Jesse Dufford was named to serve as president, Harry Wright as vice president, Doyle Glosner as secretary, Fred Flynn as financial secretary and Harry E. Doerr as treasurer.

Plan Mass Meeting.
Developments of today, which practically close up the RWD in this county have led the officers of the Co-operative Workers to plan a mass meeting for Thursday night. Full details of the meeting have not yet been arranged but will probably be ready for release on Tuesday.

Commenting upon the proposed mass meeting President Jesse Dufford said: "The situation which now prevails here is one that affects not only the workers who are thrown out of employment but the business life of the city. Merchants will feel the loss of the RWD payroll and for that reason we believe they will be interested in the meeting."

Widespread Effect.
"Every political sub-division is affected for the reason that they have made investments in tools and materials for projects that are now off. These tools are still good, the materials in some cases will be a total loss unless they are used and we believe the officers of the city, school boards and various other political subdivisions should be vitally interested."

"Other states are not reporting such drastic curtailment of projects as is Pennsylvania. Apparently this state is being discriminated against because of political reasons and human misery has become the foothold of political parties."

GILROY, Cal., April 30.—Mrs. Rogers and I driving along from Fresno to San Francisco seeing all the ranches run.

At Willie Tevis ranch (the champion endurance rider) and there at a barbecue with the Sultan of Jahore, the biggest game hunter of all the Indian Royal Park and tremendously popular over there and a regular guy.

Well, I got to tell you, how I talked myself out of seeing his place and stable and horses. He is just out of Singapore. I come in on a boat from Hong Kong to take the plane the next morning for London, so was going to drive to his estate that afternoon, but I talked at the Rotary Club luncheon and did I talk. I must have blathered for hours, bored the whole of Singapore and missed the palace of Jahore.

That's one case in history where a long-winded speaker suffered in the long run more than his listeners.

Despite an announcement by friends that Bernabe Robles, aged cattle king and grandfather of the kidnaped child, had returned from a mystery trip to Sonora, Mexico, it was learned today he had not reappeared at his home more than 24 hours after he left for Mexico.

Robles was accompanied by Henry Dalton, Tucson city councilman. This recalled reports that the kidnapers had been insisting upon a public official as intermediary.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Four men, one identified by police as George "Baby Face" Nelson, Dillinger lieutenant, fought two gun battles with suburban police today and escaped.

At Bellwood police chased a car when it failed to observe a stop-light.

The other gunmen "covered" the policemen while his aid disarmed them.

St. Paul, April 30.—With all clues exhausted and a painstaking search of the "Twin Cities" completed, department of justice agents and police today were marking time awaiting new leads concerning the whereabouts of John Dillinger and his gang of guerrillas.

While officers are unwilling to admit that the desperado and his mob have broken through the cordons of guards around the St. Paul area, it was apparent that Dillinger and his aids have deserted their previous haunts.

Underworld sources of information, police said, have either "dried up" or lead them on fruitless chases.

Hideouts where Dillinger or members of his gang are known to have stayed in the past, have been under surveillance for days, but today officers were recalled from these "plants."

While the law continued its relentless search for Dillinger and his gang, his Chicago sweetheart, Evelyn Frechette, paced her cell in the county jail here, awaiting arraignment on the federal indictment returned Saturday charging her with conspiracy to harbor Dillinger.

First Congregationalists Observe Anniversary

A day that will linger long in the memories of the First Congregational church members was the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of its founding, which took place Sunday, beginning with the Sunday School service at 9:45 when many out of town and former members began to arrive to participate in the day's program.

The service at 10:30 was conducted in the Welsh language with the pastor, Rev. Rees T. Williams, presiding. Mrs. D. B. Jones of Alliquippa, sang a touching Welsh song "Where Is The Amen" and the men's chorus, led by Dave Lewis, sang "Echoes of a Welsh Prayer Meeting."

The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Rees T. Williams as chairman and the Rev. W. W. Sniff of the Madison Avenue Christian church leading the devotionals. A miscellaneous program marked the afternoon, with brief excerpts of the church history given by Rev. Williams, telling of the influx of Welsh people to New Castle and how the Welsh life is built around their church life, how in 1893 the Welsh, with determination and grit, set to work to establish a church for themselves.

Mass Meeting Is Planned For Thursday Night

Co-operative Workers To Take Action On Closing Of RWD Work

DUFFORD HEADS NEW ORGANIZATION

Situation Is One Affecting All; Believe State Getting Worst Of It

Officers were elected Saturday afternoon by the newly formed Co-operative Workers of America, which organization contains the workers of the old CWA, the more recent RWD and all unemployed.

Jesse Dufford was named to serve as president, Harry Wright as vice president, Doyle Glosner as secretary, Fred Flynn as financial secretary and Harry E. Doerr as treasurer.

Plan Mass Meeting.
Developments of today, which practically close up the RWD in this county have led the officers of the Co-operative Workers to plan a mass meeting for Thursday night. Full details of the meeting have not yet been arranged but will probably be ready for release on Tuesday.

Commenting upon the proposed mass meeting President Jesse Dufford said: "The situation which now prevails here is one that affects not only the workers who are thrown out of employment but the business life of the city. Merchants will feel the loss of the RWD payroll and for that reason we believe they will be interested in the meeting."

Widespread Effect.
"Every political sub-division is affected for the reason that they have made investments in tools and materials for projects that are now off. These tools are still good, the materials in some cases will be a total loss unless they are used and we believe the officers of the city, school boards and various other political sub-divisions should be vitally interested."

"Other states are not reporting such drastic curtailment of projects as is Pennsylvania. Apparently this state is being discriminated against because of political reasons and human misery has become the foothold of political parties."

Belton reported to city police his car was just outside the city limits when he noticed a flashlight signal to stop.

He did and a man with a white handkerchief for a mask stepped forward and pointed a revolver at him. Belton was ordered from the car.

While the man had him held up, the handkerchief slid from his face and Belton saw he was a negro.

The man took $4.85 and ordered him to drive away. Then he fired the bullet to show the revolver chamber was loaded and to intimidate the victim.

Lieutenant Elder with Patrolmen Flinner and Kennedy went to various places where suspicious persons have hangouts but Belton did not recognize any of the men the officers questioned.

COLUMBUS, O., April 30.—While a state-wide search was in progress for three long-term convicts who fled over the walls of Ohio penitentiary yesterday prison officials today launched an investigation into the possibility that a guard "sold out" to the plotters.

Notorious Swindler Is Hunted In Kidnaping Case Of Edward Bremer

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, April 30.—William E. Mead, notorious swindler, was sought by federal agents here today as they pushed investigation of the "hot money" syndicate which involves the kidnaping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker, and the search for John Dillinger and his gang.

Meads arrest was ordered, it was learned, because federal operatives believe he directed the kidnaping gang which has Dillinger affiliations to banker Bremer.

Follows McLaughlin's Arrest
The latest development followed closely on the arrest here of John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, former Chicago political power and four others as a result of the discovery here of a part of the Bremer ransom money.

McLaughlin's arrest followed the seizure by federal agents of William Vidler, and the finding on his person of $2,600 of the Bremer ransom. According to the Department of Justice Vidler implicated McLaughlin. McLaughlin's 17 year old son, John Jr., is also being held, as are two men whom federal agents refuse to identify.

ACCUSED YOUTH EXTENDS EFFORT FOR ALIBI

Davis Family To Offer Testimony In Slaying Case

SEEK TO SAVE LIFE OF YOUTH

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, April 30.—Further efforts to establish the alibi of Thomas Davis, Jr., 19-year-old high school student, in his fight against the electric chair were to be made today as the second week of his trial for the slaying of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger began in criminal court.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, the youth's father and mother; his two brothers, Frederick and George, and his five-year-old sister were to take the stand in his defense today.

Repudiates Confession. Reaching one of the climaxes of the defense case, young Davis in his six and a half hours on the stand repudiated his confession to the murder charging that state police used third degree methods in obtaining the statement. Declaring the statement was dictated by Lieut. C. C. Keller, Davis said he signed it because:

"I knew I hadn't done it and thought when I got back home I could prove it."

Speaking in a low voice, the lad gave his version of the gun battle with Deputy Sheriff J. C. Donnelly, of Carlisle, Pa., of an alleged gun fight near Pekin, Ill., and of his escape from the county jail at Carlisle.

Story Unshaken. In the Pekin affair, Davis is supposed to have "kidnaped" W. S. Reynolds of East Peoria and forced him to drive 50 miles in an effort to escape police. Davis explained it in this way:

"I was out of gas, so I drew into a filling station and had the tank filled. I had no money and offered my watch as security. The man said, 'wait a minute,' and drew a gun and shot at me. I can't remember anything that happened after that until I arrived in Kansas City." Rigid cross-examination failed to shake his story.

James Taylor on "The Church As It Is Today." Old Welsh melodies were sung by the congregation at intervals, with Griff Thomas as director.

Supper was served by the women of the church between the afternoon and evening sessions.

Evening Program

The evening program climaxed a day of spiritual uplift with The Rev. Thomas Francis leading the devotionals. The speaker was Dr. Carl August Voss, pastor of the Evangelical German Congregation at Carlisle, Pa.

He preached a forceful and dynamic sermon, bringing a wealth of illustration to his points.

watchman at the park, reported that he traveled through Cascade boulevard about 8 o'clock and Sankey's Ford coup which was later found alongside the boulevard, was not there. De Andri visited the lower portion of the park to inspect the bathhouse at 9 a. m. and reports he did not see the car standing there then. The coupe, standing along the road, was examined and papers which contained the name Roy Sankey were found. Further search of the car furnished evidence that made it apparent that Sankey had not met with foul play. His open face Waltham gold watch and his shell rimmed spectacles were in the car, as were the keys to the automobile.

Suffered From Aliment.

According to the detectives and Roy Sankey had suffered from indigestion trouble for a long time. News of his death was spread rapidly and regret at his passing was expressed generally as he was prominently and favorably known.

For almost a score of years he had served the city as a member of the Central fire department and when he left the city service he became chief of the fire department at the Burton Powder Works.

Mr. Sankey was born in this city, the son of Lawson and Eliza Jane Kerr Sankey. He is survived by his mother and two brothers, Smith Sankey of this city and Brant O. Sankey of Zellerbach.

He was a member of the F. O. E. and the Volunteer Firemen. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from the home, 205 South Walnut street, and interment will be made in Oak Park cemetery.

They pointed out a new agreement was reached only a few months ago between Arizona and Sonora, in which the states agreed to use as much diligence as their own.

Robles carried a small black bag when he left for Mexico.

Tucson, Ariz., April 30.—The life of June Robles, 6-year-old heiress grand-daughter of Bernabe Robles, Arizona cattle baron, hung in the balance today with the apparent failure of negotiations between members of the Robles family and the kidnapers who seized her Wednesday for $15,000 ransom.

Warned in ultimatum yesterday that the police search must be halted and by renewal of the demand of the full ransom, and an additional $5,000, June's father, Fernando Robles, informed an intermediary that he was unable to raise the money.

In accord with a second ransom note, however, June's grandfather has offered to pay the $5,000 balance. It was reported that already he had paid the kidnapers $10,000.

Members of the Robles family declared that the abductors had broken faith by asking for more money. They pointed out they had no assurance that the little heiress would be returned safely even though the $15,000, and the additional $5,000 demanded was paid.

Fernando Robles declared that if the kidnapers would produce his daughter at the time the cash was handed over he was certain that the full amount would be tendered by the small victim's millionaire grandfather.

Hope that June would be returned safely was renewed, however, following the return of Bernabe Robles from a mysterious trip into Mexico yesterday.

RWD SHUTDOWN TO ADD BURDEN TO RELIEF BOARD

See Increase In Relief Rolls If Projects Stay Idle For Long

Unless work on Lawrence county's relief works division projects resumes shortly, the relief rolls of the Lawrence County Emergency Relief board will be swelled considerably by families which, up to the time the RWD activities halted last Friday, were receiving support thru RWD pay checks.

The North Mill street office of the board distributed 350 orders on Saturday to workmen whose support had been taken completely away with the shutdown of the relief projects.

Executive Director E. H. Robinson, while making no predictions, said that a strong possibility exists that almost 1,800 additional families will be receiving food orders at the end of the present week if the RWD operations have not been resumed by then. He made it plain that that figure was merely an estimate.

Pennsylvania's 67 counties today were asked to relay relief burden heaped on them as a result of the RWD shutdown and, according to dispatches from Washington, will continue to unless the federal government boosts its May allotment. It has appropriated $7,500,000 for Pennsylvania's direct relief work, $2,500,000 short of what was anticipated.

Every Pennsylvania county, it was felt, would receive decreased allotments for May as a result of the Washington action.

The story told by Norma will be translated from the witness stand for the defense by the psychiatrist who listened to her. He is Dr. Max Bennett, of Boston.

Will Not Testify It is unlikely that Norma will take the witness stand herself until she is scheduled to go into court on her own behalf.

"She told me definitely she does not wish to be a witness at the Millen-Faber trial," said George Douglas, her counsel.

George Hovey, attorney for the Millen brothers, has subpoenaed Norma as a defense witness but Douglas has recorded his opposition.

While Norman, with her attorney objecting, personally to certain questions, was undergoing examination by the psychiatrist, the Millen brothers and Faber were being examined by three other alienists.

The defense claims that all three defendants are insane.

All three men had been working in the prison power plant. Besides the possibility that a guard had "sold-out" to the convicts, Warden Preston E. Thomas disclosed he was investigating also a report that the trio may have obtained a mysterious gun that has long been believed to have been inside the prison.

Presence of the mysterious gun in the prison, which had become almost a legend, has been quietly investigated for some time, but prison officials were never able to verify it or to discover its hiding place.

PROPAGANDA BEING PROBED

Foreign Propaganda Activities Investigation Centers On Nazi Movement

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, April 30.—Driving ahead in its investigation of foreign propaganda activities in this country, the special House investigating committee today sent one of its members and two government agents to Asheville, N. C., to subpoena alleged participants in the American Nazi movement.

Rep. Kramer (D) of California, of the committee, together with the agents, left Washington last night armed with the subpoenas.

They will be present at the bankruptcy proceedings against the Galahad Press, of Asheville, which, the committee claims, publishes "Liberation," a pro-Hitler organ sponsored by William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts.

The committee already has secured information showing that a number of wealthy individuals, including several women, have contributed funds to Pelley's publications. Kramer will subpoena these persons to appear before the committee for investigation.

Pelley, who also publishes an anti-Jewish periodical in Los Angeles, was reported to be enroute to Asheville to appear at the bankruptcy case. It was indicated he also would be summoned by Kramer.

From reports reaching here it appeared that federal agents in northern Wisconsin have exhausted clues in that vicinity.

At Madison, Wis., the county jail bristled with riot guns today in preparation for a possible visit from Nelson. To three girls seized in the shooting at Spirit Lake a week ago are being held there.

The precautions were taken when it was learned that one of the girls is the wife of Nelson. She said that they had three children, but refused to reveal their whereabouts. Officers feared Nelson might make an attempt to liberate his wife.

ACCUSED YOUTH EXTENDS EFFORT FOR ALIBI

Davis Family To Offer Testimony In Slaying Case

SEEK TO SAVE LIFE OF YOUTH

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, April 30.—Further efforts to establish the alibi of Thomas Davis, Jr., 19-year-old high school student, in his fight against the electric chair were made today as the second week of his trial for the slaying of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger began in criminal court.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, the youth's father and mother; his two brothers, Frederick and George, and his five-year-old sister were to take the stand in his defense.

Reputed Confession. Reaching one of the climaxes of the defense case, young Davis in his six and a half hours on the stand repudiated his confession to the murder charging that state police used third degree methods in obtaining the statement. Declaring the statement was dictated by Lieut. C. C. Keller, Davis said he signed it because:

"I knew I hadn't done it and thought when I got back home I could prove it," he said. Speaking in a low voice, the lad gave his version of the gun battle with Deputy Sheriff J. C. Donnewald of Carlisle, Pa., of an alleged gun fight near Carlisle, Pa., and of his escape from the county jail at Carlisle.

Story Unshaken. In the Pekin affair, Davis is supposed to have "kidnaped" W. S. Reynolds of East Peoria and forced him to drive 50 miles in an effort to escape police. Davis explained it in this way: "I was out of gas, so I drew into a filling station and had the tank filled. I had no money and offered my watch as security. The man said, 'wait a minute,' and drew a gun and shot at me. I can't remember anything that happened after that until I arrived in Kansas City."

Rigid cross-examination failed to shake his story.

CONGREGATIONAL ANNIVERSARY

James Taylor on "The Church As It Is Today." Old Welsh melodies were sung by the congregation at intervals, with Griff Thomas as director.

Supper was served by the women of the church between the afternoon and evening sessions.

Evening Program

The evening program climaxed a day of spiritual uplift with The Rev. Thomas Francis leading the devotionals. The speaker was Dr. Carl August Voss, pastor of the Evangelical German Congregational church of Pittsburgh. He preached a forceful and dynamic sermon, bringing a wealth of illustration to his points.

Soloists included Mrs. J. Harry Jones of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Alice Reese Tomlinson and Mrs. Isaac Jones of Aliquippa and Mordcaei Humphreys of Youngstown, Ohio. Mrs. Mary Hopkins Evans presided at the organ throughout the day.

The charter members, as their names appear in the records, were: D. W. Thomas, W. L. Thomas, W. E. Jones, John D. Williams, Mrs. John D. watchman at the park reported that he travelled through Cascade boulevard about 8 o'clock and Sankey's Ford coup which was later found alongside the boulevard, was not there. De Andri visited the lower portion of the park to inspect the bathhouse at 9 a. m. and reports he did not see the car standing there then. The coupe, standing along the road, was examined and papers which contained the name Roy Sankey were found. Further search of the car furnished evidence that made it apparent that Sankey had not met with foul play. His open face Waltham gold watch and his shell rimmed spectacles were in the car, as were the keys to the automobile.

Suffered From Ailment.

According to the detectives and relatives, Sankey had suffered from stomach trouble for a long time. News of his death spread rapidly and regret at his passing was expressed generally as he was prominently and favorably known.

For almost a score of years he had served the city as a member of the Central fire department and when he left the city service he became chief of the fire department at the Burton Powder Works.

Mr. Sankey was born in this city, the son of Lawson and Eliza Jane Kerr Sankey. He is survived by his mother and two brothers, Smith Sankey of this city and Brant O. Sankey of Zellenople.

He was a member of the F. O. E. and the Volunteer Firemen.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from the home, 205 South Walnut street, and interment will be made in Oak Park cemetery.

He was born in Scotland April 24, 1896, the son of William and Margaret Nourse McLaren. He had lived here the past eleven years and worked as a machinist. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church and the Knights of Malta.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the home, 303 North Diamond Way and interment will be made in Oak Park cemetery.

Goes To Washington Harrisburg, April 30.—For the second time within a week, Gov. Gifford Pinchot flew to Washington today for a conference with federal relief officials on Pennsylvania's critical relief situation.

The Governor's trip today was made at the request of federal relief administrator Harry J. Hopkins who asked the Pennsylvania executive to meet him in Washington at noon.

Funds advanced for May by the federal government, local relief officials say, will necessitate a huge reduction in the personnel of the local works relief division which faces a temporary halt today for almost 100,000 employees.

Foreign Propaganda Activities Investigation Centers On Nazi Movement

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Driving ahead in its investigation of foreign propaganda activities in this country, the special House investigating committee today sent one of its members and two government agents to Asheville, N. C., to subpoena alleged participants in the American Nazi movement.

Rep. Kramer (D) of California, of the committee, together with the agents, left Washington last night armed with the subpoenas.

They will be present at the bankruptcy proceedings against the Galahad Press, of Asheville, which, the committee claims, publishes "Liberation," a pro-Hitler organ sponsored by William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts.

The committee already has secured information showing that a number of wealthy individuals, including several women, have contributed funds to Pelley's publications. Kramer will subpoena these persons to appear before the committee for investigation.

Pelley, who also publishes an anti-Jewish periodical in Los Angeles, was reported to be enroute to Asheville to appear at the bankruptcy case. It was indicated he also would be summoned by Kramer.

One of the men's close resemblance to Dillinger prompted the hotel manager to call police.

The precautions were taken when it was learned that one of the girls is the wife of Nelson. She said that they had three children, but refused to reveal their whereabouts. Officers feared Nelson might make an attempt to liberate his wife.

ACCUSED YOUTH EXTENDS EFFORT FOR ALIBI

Davis Family To Offer Testimony In Slaying Case

SEEK TO SAVE LIFE OF YOUTH

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, April 30.—Further efforts to establish the alibi of Thomas Davis, Jr., 19-year-old high school student, in his fight against the electric chair were to be made today as the second week of his trial for the slaying of State Highway Patrolman Herbert Brantlinger began in criminal court.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Davis, the youth's father and mother; his two brothers, Frederick and George, and his five-year-old sister were to take the stand in his defense.

Repudiates Confession

Reaching one of the climaxes of the defense case, young Davis in his six and a half hours on the stand repudiated his confession to the murder charging that state police used third degree methods in obtaining the statement. Declaring the statement was dictated by Lieut. C. C. Keller, Davis said he signed it because:

"I knew I hadn't done it and thought when I got back home I could prove it."

Speaking in a low voice, the lad gave his version of the gun battle with Deputy Sheriff J. C. Donnewald of Carlyle, Ill.; of an alleged gun fight near Pekin, Ill., and of his escape from the county jail at Carlyle.

Story Unshaken.
In the Pekin affair, Davis is supposed to have "kidnaped" W. S. Reynolds of East Peoria and forced him to drive 50 miles in an effort to escape police. Davis explained it in this way:

"I was out of gas, so I drew into a filling station and had the tank filled. I had no money and offered my watch as security. The man said, 'wait a minute,' and drew a gun and shot at me. I can't remember anything that happened after that until I arrived in Kansas City."

ings from M. Davis, moderator of the state and M. Watkins, moderator of the western conference; Rev. Chester Hepler of Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davis, Florida, Mr. and Mrs. G. Emrys Hopkins, Canton; Sue Harvard Armstrong of New York City.

John D. Williams of Follansbee, W. Va., a charter member, spoke on "The Church 40 Years Ago" and

James Taylor on "The Church As It Is Today." Old Welsh melodies were sung by the congregation at intervals, with Griff Thomas as director.

Evening Program

The evening program climaxed a day of spiritual uplift with The Rev. Thomas Francis leading the devotionals. The speaker was Dr. Carl August Voss, pastor of the Evangelical German Congregational church of Pittsburgh. He preached a forceful and dynamic sermon, bringing a wealth of illustration to his points.

Soloists included Mrs. J. Harry Jones of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Alice Reese Tomlinson and Mrs. Isaac Jones of Allegheny and Mordecai Humphreys of Youngstown, Ohio. Mrs. Mary Hopkins Evans presided at the organ throughout the day.

The charter members, as their names appear in the records, were: D. W. Thomas, W. L. Thomas, W. E. Jones, John D. Williams, Mrs. John D. Williams, William Powell, Mrs. William Powell, John Griffiths, Mrs. William Hopkins, Miss Elizabeth Hopkins, David John, Mrs. David John, Mrs. Solomon Mort, Mrs. Ellen Lewis, Miss Annie Lewis, Mrs. Evan Jones, Miss Winifred Jones, Miss Ellen Lewis, John Beynon, Mrs. John Beynon, Mrs. Margt. watchman at the park, reported that he traveled through Cascade boulevard about 8 o'clock and Sankey's Ford coup which was later found alongside the boulevard, was not there. De Andri visited the lower portion of the park to inspect the bathhouse at 9 a. m. and reports he did not see the car standing there then. The coupe, standing along the road, was examined and papers which contained the name Roy Sankey were found. Further search of the car furnished evidence that made it apparent that Sankey had not met with foul play. His open face Walworth gold watch and his shell rimmed spectacles were in the car, as were the keys to the automobile.

Suffered From Ailment

According to the detectives and relatives, Sankey had suffered from stomach trouble for a long time. News of his death spread rapidly and regret at his passing was expressed generally as he was prominently and favorably known.

For almost a score of years he had served the city as a member of the Central fire department and when he left the city service he became chief of the fire department at the Burton Powder Works.

Mr. Sankey was born in this city, the son of Lawson and Eliza Jane Kerr Sankey. He is survived by his mother and two brothers, Smith Sankey of this city and Brant O. Sankey of Zelienople.

He was a member of the F. O. E. and the Volunteer Firemen. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from the home, 205 South Walnut street, and interment will be made in Oak Park cemetery.

The best memory is one that forgets everything that is not worth remembering.

Local Man Found Dead By Brother

Death Is Believed To Have Resulted From Stroke Sunday Morning

James McLaren, aged 38 years, of 303 North Diamond Way, was found dead in the bathroom at the home of his brother, William early Sunday morning, death having evidently been due to a stroke. He had been in poor health, members of the family stated.

Coroner Orville Potter, who was summoned by members of the family, pronounced death due to apoplexy.

He was born in Scotland April 24, 1896, the son of William and Margaret Nourse McLaren. He had lived here the past eleven years and worked as a machinist. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church and the Knights of Malta.

Funeral services will be held on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the home, 303 North Diamond Way and interment will be made in Oak Park cemetery.

He is survived by his mother; three brothers: William and David, of this city and Margaret, of Sharon, and two sisters Mrs. Margaret Bimtree and Mrs. Ellen Bridenbaugh, of this city.

ARIZONA GIRL IS STILL HELD BY KIDNAPERS

may have been carried by her abductors into the wilds of Sonora. The Sonora state government announced today in Hermosillo that the Mexican army had been ordered to search for the girl. Mexican officials, who only recently sent police officers to Tucson to study the means used to capture the Dillinger desperadoes here, said they would conduct an intensive hunt and if the abductors were found, surrender them at once to police here. They pointed out a new agreement was reached only a few months ago between Arizona and Sonora, in which these states agreed to use as much diligence in tracking the other's criminals as their own.

Robles carried a small black bag when he left for Mexico.

Tucson, Ariz., April 30.—The life of June Robles, 6-year-old heiress grand-daughter of Bernabe Robles, Arizona cattle baron, hung in the balance today with the apparent failure of negotiations between members of the Robles family and the kidnapers who seized her Wednesday for $15,000 ransom.

Warned in an ultimatum yesterday that the police search must be halted and by renewal of the demand of the full ransom, and an additional $5,000, June's father, Fernando Robles, informed an intermediary that he was unable to raise the money.

In accord with a second ransom note, however, June's grandfather has offered to pay the $5,000 balance. It was reported that already he had paid the kidnapers $10,000.

Members of the Robles family declared that the abductors had broken faith by asking for more money. They pointed out they had no assurance that the little heiress would be returned safely even though the $5,000 to make up the balance of $15,000, and the additional $5,000 demanded was paid.

Fernando Robles declared that if the kidnapers would produce his daughter at the time the cash was handed over he was certain that the full amount would be tendered by the small victim's millionaire grandfather.

Hope that June would be returned safely was renewed, however, following the return of Bernabe Robles from a mysterious trip into Mexico yesterday.

RWD SHUTDOWN TO ADD BURDEN TO RELIEF BOARD

See Increase In Relief Rolls If Projects Stay Idle For Long

Unless work on Lawrence county's relief works division projects resumes shortly, the relief rolls of the Lawrence County Emergency Relief board will be swelled considerably by families which, up to the time the RWD activities halted last Friday, were receiving support thru RWD pay checks.

The North Mill street office of the board distributed 350 orders on Saturday to workmen whose support had been taken completely away with the shutdown of the relief projects.

Executive Director E. H. Robinson, while making no predictions, said that a strong possibility exists that almost 1,800 additional families will be receiving food orders at the end of the present week if the RWD operations have not been resumed by then. He made it plain that that figure was merely an estimate.

Pennsylvania's 67 counties today were sharing the new relief burden heaped on them as a result of the RWD shutdown and, according to dispatches from Washington, will continue to unless the federal government boosts its May allotment. It has appropriated $7,500,000 for Pennsylvania's direct relief work, $500,000 short of what was anticipated.

Every Pennsylvania county, it was felt, would receive decreased allotments for May as a result of the Washington action.

meeting him in a Nantasket dance hall, until his arrest in a New York hotel.

The story told by Norma will be translated from the witness stand for the defense by the psychiatrist who listened to her. He is Dr. Max Bennett, of Boston.

Will Not Testify
It is unlikely that Norma will take the witness stand herself until she is scheduled to go into court on her own behalf.

"She told me definitely she does not want to be a witness at the Milten-Faber trial," said George Douglass, her counsel.

George Havey, attorney for the Milten brothers, has subpoenaed Norma as a defense witness but Douglass has recorded his opposition.

While Norma, with her attorney objecting, frequently to certain questions, was undergoing examination by the psychiatrist, the Milten brothers and Faber were being examined by three other alienists.

The defense claims that all three defendants are insane.

Called To Stand.
DEBHAM, Mass., April 30.—Rose Kneller, sweetheart of Abe Faber, on trial for murder, with Murtion and Irving Milten, today testified against her fiancé.

Called as a witness, Miss Kneller, a slim, dark girl of 21, told of a wedding gift given her by Faber about a week after the robbery of the Needham Trust company on Feb. 2.

The prosecution aimed to show this "gift" was money stolen from the Needham bank.

"What did Faber say to you when he gave you the package?" District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing asked.

"He said it was a present," Rose replied.

"What kind of a present was it?" "A wedding present he told me. I asked him who gave it to us. He said: 'I would rather not tell you.' "I asked him if he would tell me if I coaxed him and he said he would if I coaxed him but he said he hoped I wouldn't coax him."

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

SWEETNESS OUT OF THE ROCK

Here in this cleft of the hills the sun beats fiercely upon the earth. The green of the spring grass is already wearing thin and the brown of the summer appears. Up there on the higher slopes the lupin and the wild mustard and the poppies spring from the rich earth and make a splendid show. . . . But down here on these rocky slopes no flowers bloom, hardly a weed grows, all the earth has been washed away and the might say, if you were here, that nothing living could survive in this bit of the earth where the stones crop out and the land seems discouraged of all effort.

But when you look again you see gnarled stumps fixed in the fields. On the stumps are tender green leaves. The stumps are regularly placed and you see that this is a vineyard. . . . You wonder why any man was so foolish as to make a vineyard in this depleted earth, and you muse over the vain, eternally hopeful spirit of humanity. . . . But you are wasting your philosophy, because in this dry corner of this valley, the best grapes grow.

These vines know their business better than you think. They sink their roots deep, they live richly here. And out of this soil, from these grapes, comes a wine that men prize beyond many others. Some fair combination of soil and water and sun and air makes this vineyard superior. No man can tell you why, but no man denies it. . . . And it's an odd thing, but everywhere in the world you will find good vineyards growing in the rocky soil where the grain would not grow and the orchard would wither away.

So standing here, a man might reflect: "Why are not all men as wise as the vine with its seeking roots and its twisting tendrils? How is it that some men can survive only in the rich soil, while other men, like these vines, are challenged by adversity and grow stronger in the struggle to survive? Why do some men distill only bitterness from their years, while other men draw sweetness from the rock and create a spirit that is fairer and finer than any wine ever made by man? I cannot answer this question. All I know is that I saw those sturdy vines clinging strongly to the rocky soil, and I looked ahead to the rich harvest that would be theirs in the autumn—and my heart was lifted high in praise and exultation.

There are no good or bad
Or high or low

Where roses bloom.

Question of "who are you

"What do you think of those old Greek and Roman sculptures?"
"They're no good, every one of them was a chiseler."

A MODEL TENANT
The Varners live in a rented house. The other day an old friend of the family, who is quite a grand lady, called. Little David, aged five, had to open the door and entertain the caller while his mother was putting on her "afternoon" dress and wondering up a little. The caller remarked to David: "I presume you are a good little boy and take your bath every day?"

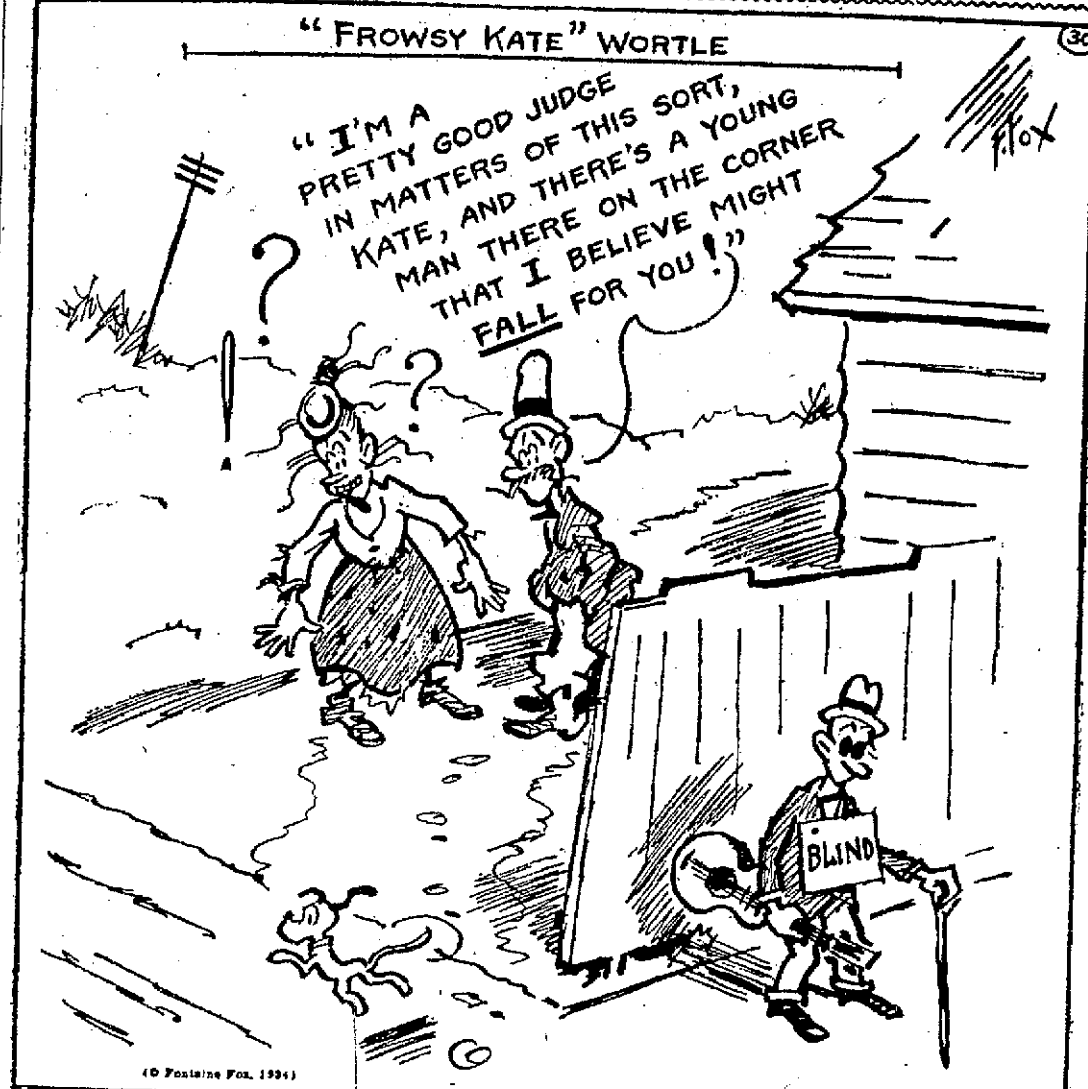

David answered, with disgust: "Mother says I ought to, but I don't. And she don't and Dad don't either. The bathtub has been stopped up ever since we moved in and Dad said he didn't want to start complainin' to the landlord right off."

"How long have you lived here?" the caller asked.

"Oh, a year or two," responded David.

New Castle housewives better watch out. A Pittsburgh man got a divorce because his wife wouldn't sew any buttons on his clothes.

English women are turning to snuff as a new diversion. That should make 'em sit up and snuff.

The class had been told by the teacher to write compositions in which they must not attempt any flights of fancy, but should only tell what was really in them. The star production was turned by a boy who wrote: "I shall not attempt any flights of fancy but will write what is really in me. In me there is my stumblin' heart, lungs, liver, three other innards, two sandwiches, three doughnuts and three apples."

He—Don't act like a fool!

"Why do you suppose people seem to be all tired out when April 1st comes?" asked an inquiring person.

Some people have ideas and never capitalize on them, but Sally Rand who persisted in showing off yinling but what a few fans will cover when wiggled about is now pulling down $5,000 per week where she was al-

Fishmouth—I dreamed last night that I died.
Pickie—And the heat woke you up?

It doesn't take much to satisfy some people. We met a fellow yesterday who said that he always felt happy when he was able to own a pair of suspenders for each pair of pants.

You'll notice, however, that the laundry doesn't seem quite so hard on linen that friend husband doesn't wipe his razor on.

Folks just don't seem to enthuse any more over elections. Here, it's nearly primary day, and aside from a few candidates blowing into town to eat a ham sandwich, spill a few platitudes and wag a few paws, you wouldn't know that a campaign was on.

UNREASONABLE LANDLORDS
Little girl (looking over newspaper advertisements)—Mamma, why is it that apartment house people say they don't want families with children?

Teacher—I'm sure I don't know. I think they're very unreasonable. Go and see what the baby is howling about and tell Johnny to stop throwing things at people in passing autos and make Susie and Dolly stop fighting and tell Dick if he doesn't stop blowing that bugle I'll take it away from him.

The rural editor went home to supper very tired, but with an unusual smile lighting up his poor old face. "Have you had some good luck at last?" his wife inquired.

"Luck! I should say so," responded the editor. "Old Squire Skinner, who hasn't paid anything on his subscription for 10 years, came in and stopped his paper."

An Electrical Woman Is Mystifying Engineers In Italy, But It's Not The First Time A Woman Has Done Something Shocking.

Scientists insist the heart has nothing to do with love. But that's a hard point to prove in Spring—as any winsome lass or normal lad will testify on a pleasant evening.

The little man who had been hauled into court by his wife shuddered as the judge cornered him up with his keen questioning. "Where did you first meet this woman?" the judge asked.

"Yes, sir; I'd suggest you remove that lipstick from your ear."

You may have noticed during the past few years that most laws effect only the middle class. The good people do not need them and the bad people disregard them.

A Connecticut man was fined $5 for splashing mud on a pedestrian. There is some justice in the world after all.

"Is this a fire insurance office?"
"Yes, can I write you some insurance?"
"Well, my employer says he's going to fire me at the end of the week and I'd like to take out a policy to protect me."

Being a weather man has its disadvantages. Down in Washington, the other day, the prognosticators decided it would be cool, but instead it got hot and rained and during the thunderstorm, lightning struck the weather bureau building. Maybe the gods were disgusted.

Women would be peculiarly fitted to serve in the supreme court of the United States. This would give them a chance to have the last word.

Boy Friend: "Shall I ask your mother if we can get married?"
Girl Friend: "I should say not! She's a widow and may want you for herself."

Most used car purchasers are not satisfied with their buy until they go out on a Sunday and pass a $6,000 touring car, three $3,400 sedans, seven $2,000 sedans, six $5,000 roadsters and a $12,000 limousine.

Most young couples rush into matrimony like they cross railroad tracks. There would be fewer marriage wrecks if they heeded the "stop, look, and listen" signs.

But the sins of the parents aren't the only things visited on the children. There are the bond issues.

Imitation is said to be the highest form of flattery, but when a group of Steubenville boys took off their clothes and paraded around in a vacant lot like their grownups they had heard about, the police charged them. If they had been adults, it probably would have been different.

In Angling, the Fun Begins When the Fish Swallows Your Hook, but in flirtation, the Trouble Starts When the Poor Fish Swallows her "line."

Even the women are plenty tough down in Texas. A woman gasoline station attendant freed a kidnapped man from three other men in an auto, the other day. Might put that woman on the police force of some of these northern towns where crime is rampant.

Another thing wrong with our police system is the theory that the criminal should have the first shot.

Silver Speculators Outmaneuvered
Strikes in Oil Fields Next?
Whose Face on $10,000 Bill?

By LESLIE EICHEL

Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, April 30.—Silver speculators left themselves wide open to the government's move to open the normal amount of silver held in New York is from 10 to 15 ounces.

The sum held now is 200 million ounces. It is not against the law to hold silver.

But it is against public policy (the government contends) to buy it on speculation in anticipation that the government remonetize it and boost the price.

OIL NEXT?
The largest strikes next to occur may be in the oil fields.

That is what Wall Street hears. At least, oil companies are preparing.

"Preparing" means to resist unionization.

Since, however, President Roosevelt has got behind the Wagner labor bill, resisting on a large scale in the oil manner will have to take place prior to the passage of the bill.

ON $10,000 BILL
Whose face appears on the $10,000 bill?

Didn't know there was such a bill?

Yes—we've heard there is. A correspondent of this column called up the Federal Reserve bank to ask whose face was on it. They didn't know. Didn't they have $10,000 bills? Oh, plenty of them.

Tell, whose face?
They'd take a look.
Salmon P. Chase—secretary of the treasury in the Lincoln cabinet. He was the man who put "In God We Trust" on coins.

MINUTE BIOG
The chief denouncer in the senate is Republican Senator Arthur H. Robinson of Indiana. He is a 300 per cent conservative.

Democrats in Hooverland say he is going down to defeat in November. That, of course, remains to be seen.

Robinson is a war veteran and a thirty-third degree Mason.

He has been a senator and a judge of the superior court at Indianapolis, his home city.

He was appointed to the U. S. senate Oct. 20, 1925; elected Nov. 2, 1926; re-elected Nov. 6, 1928.

Hooverland during those years reverberated with cries of "Klan" and "Anti-Klan." Democrats termed Robinson "Klan."

EXECUTIVES
When is an executive?

The question arises concerning certain New York stores.

Men and Women getting small salaries allege, since the inception of codes, they are working harder than ever.

Hours of clerks of course were shortened.

But few new persons were hired, according to this contention.

Instead, minor heads of departments at times now work from three to four hours overtime preparing for sales.

FASCISM
Watch for swift moves by Fascists in England.

Unless action is taken this year to gain control of the government, a Labor government may come into power again.

Fascists make no secret they would virtually do away with the ballot and parliament. Or make universal suffrage impossible.

The ballot could be regained only by revolution. And those who could lead a revolt to preserve the ballot would be sent to prison camps—or be hanged.

In England? Anywhere.

The new trend in Europe. In the United States Fascists look upon President Roosevelt as the "greatest obstacle."

That is in contradiction to critics of the president.

THE WORLD AND THE MUD PUDDLES

A DANGEROUS SPOT

Probably no spot in the world has been so much bloodied as the Place de la Concorde, scene of the recent rioting. Paris, situated in the heart of modern France, it has figured in nearly every outbreak in the history of France in the last 300 years.

It was there the guillotine was set up during the French Revolution, on which Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, Robespierre, Charlotte Corday, Camille des Moulins, and thousands of others lost their heads.

There Napoleon reviewed his heroic troops after the battles of Austerlitz and Wagram.

From this spot, also, Charles X escaped from the Paris mob following his abdication in 1830; while four years later, Louis Philippe also got away from another mob at this point after which the second French Republic was established.

"What made you a multi-millionaire?" a reporter asked of a big razor blade magnate.

"My wife," answered the man of sharp practices.

"Ah, her tactful help and advice in times of great need, I suppose?"

"Nothing of the sort. I was just curious to see if there was any income my wife couldn't live beyond."

Bachelor—I kneel to a woman! Never!

She—Too much pride?

Bachelor—No, too much rheumatism.

Women would be peculiarly fitted to serve in the supreme court of the United States. This would give them a chance to have the last word.

Boy Friend: "Shall I ask your mother if we can get married?"

Girl Friend: "I should say not! She's a widow and may want you for herself."

MONDAY, APRIL 30

Memorable Days—April 30, 1324—A warrior so brave that his fame has endured four centuries, was mortally wounded by an archer's ball while leading French soldiers in battle with Spaniards.

Pierre Terrail Bayard, the celebrated Chevalier Bayard, was 41 when he died. Once, with 1,000 men he held 35,000 invaders off for six weeks and compelled them to retreat.

Another time, he single-handedly picked 200 Spaniards from taking a narrow passage. His valor was so well known and admired by the enemy that when he fell, the opposing general wept.

Bayard was the inventor of modern military espionage and some of his methods are used today.

April 30, 1789.—The first president was inaugurated in a place now supposed to be Wall St.

George Washington, plainly dressed in a dark-brown suit with white silk stockings, took the oath of office upon a gallery of New York city hall at Nassau and Wall streets, from Robert R. Livingston, chancellor of New York state.

April 30, 1798.—The navy department was established. First secretary: Benjamin Stoddert of Maryland, a cavalry officer!

April 30, 1803.—The aforesaid Robert R. Livingston, sent to Paris to buy the town of New Orleans from French, purchased it—and $37,037,000 of the other territory including La. and Ariz. C. D. M. M. Nob. Iowa, N. D., S. D., Kansas, Missouri, and portions of Colo. and Wyo. with 85,000 whites and 40,000 slaves!

The prize real estate salesman: Barbe Marbois, acting for Bonaparte. Price: $27,268,622.

April 30, 1812.—Louisiana became the 18th state. Motto: Union, Justice and Confidence. Flower: Magnolia.

Notable Nativities April 30—Homer Stille Cummings, b. 1870, attorney-general of the U. S. He likes to read detective stories.

Frank Lehar, b. 1870, composer—The Merry Widow, Gypsy Love, etc.

Sir John Lubbock, b. 1834, renowned English naturalist and paleontologist.

Juliana, b. 1809, only child and heir of Queen Wilhelmina of the kingdom of the Netherlands.

Fielding H. Yost, b. 1871, notable football coach of University of Michigan.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., b. 1858, journalist.

Timothy A. Smiddy, b. 1877, first minister of the Irish Free State to the largest Irish country—the U. S.

In the "Good Old Days"—Masters had healthy teeth drawn from the mouths of slaves to replace their own decayed canines and incisors. The dentists of those days, who usually were barbers or blacksmiths with a side line in medicine with living molars, and the teeth were jerked out by the roots and fitted into the empty sockets of millday's or millord's mouth. Such transplantations were, of course, short-lived and the process had to be repeated at intervals.

TOO MANY PRISON ESCAPES

THERE is something radically wrong with the prison maintenance system in the United States.

Hardly a week passes that there is not a report from some section of the country, that desperate prisoners have succeeded in breaking out of jail, or of other penal institutions.

Not alone, Dillinger and his gang, but others who are probably just as dangerous, have succeeded in getting out of prisons where they were supposed to be safely locked up for the rest of their lives, and the communities freed of their dangerous activities.

Several of the fugitives now being sought are those who were captured by Federal and state agents on kidnapping charges. Even closer to home, after excellent police work had been done and a gang that looted houses in New Castle had been captured, sentenced and taken to prison, two of them made their get-away from state's prison and are at liberty today, unless recaptured since this was written.

It is slight wonder that prison sentences do not have the deterring influence that they should have. Many of the prisoners, encouraged by the large number of successful jail breaking escapades, feel that they will be able to make a get-away also.

Prison sentences should be made to mean just exactly what they are meant to, when pronounced by the courts. There should be a drastic tightening up in prison methods in all states, so that once a desperado is captured, tried and convicted, the country can feel assured that he is removed from preying upon any community further.

STATE RELIEF EMPLOYMENT CRISIS

Phonetic and intelligent action is necessary unless approximately 50,000 workers now carried on LWD jobs in Pennsylvania are to be thrown out of employment. This crisis is due to the fact that there has been a sudden and unexpected slash of $2,400,000 in the Federal Emergency Relief Board grant to the state for May and also to the almost exhausted condition of the cash balance of the State Emergency Relief Board, which totals only $421,650 for next month.

The result was a stop order on all jobs for four days while Director Biddle and his aides consider what may be done to save as many of them as possible. To cut off half of the 100,000 men now employed would bring suffering and acute privation to many families. Projects estimated to cost $15,000,000 are under way. To drop them in a partly completed state means a considerable economic loss.

The immediate way out of this difficulty would be an increase in the federal allotment. Due to various causes the workers in Pennsylvania have had the worst of it ever since the beginning of federal relief.

The records show says the Philadelphia Inquirer that Pennsylvania has been putting up approximately 1.75 cents for every penny contributed by the national government. It is one of fifteen states getting only 45 per cent of its relief funds from Washington; at least thirteen states are getting more than 95 per cent from that source.

Fair play demands that it get a greater share of federal money. At present Pennsylvania is not only paying out more than Washington for relief of the jobless within its borders, but is helping Washington to pay the relief bills for thirty-three other states in the nation.

These undisputed facts furnish an impressive reason why additional federal relief funds should be allotted to Pennsylvania promptly to prevent the impending unemployment crisis.

ROAD MAINTENANCE IS COSTLY

Addition of another mile to the system of improved highways does not necessarily mean one less mile of road to maintain. The old-fashioned up-in-the-middle and down-in-the-gutters dirt road which was maintained by a little filling and a spring scraping cost less to maintain than most types of hard-surface construction.

The public is more particular about the dressing up of good roads than it is about the upkeep of bad roads. It has more patience with a neglected mud road than with the little things that go wrong with good roads.

Pennsylvania now spends more to clear her improved highways of snow than she spent to maintain her entire highway system in the days when the reputation of her roads was not what it is today. Last winter that state spent $2,000,000 plowing snow and making the hills and curves non-skid with cinders. In the old days the mud road needed the snowplow badly enough but it never got it.

And yet winter maintenance is a small item compared with the spring and summer repairs. The best road built is a source of expense and some types of improved construction cost more than $1000 per year per mile to keep in good condition.

When America began building good roads it got itself out of the mud and dust but not out of the expense of highway maintenance.

TWENTY PER CENT FOR TAXES

The high cost of government needs no proof to the man who pays taxes in the multitudinous ways most men pay taxes, yet even the tax-oppressed individual is a little startled when he reads that 20.3 per cent of the nation's income is taken for taxes.

When the national income was at its peak and taxes were still climbing it took nearly 12 cents out of every dollar to run the government, but now that the national income is but a shadow of its former robust and rosy self, with taxes still refusing to take off weight, a fifth of each pay check and dividend check is confiscated by local, state and national government.

Had it not been for the necessity of providing work for the jobless and doles for the needy the country might have made some headway against the staggering weight of taxation during the last four years. The people have been indulgent only because the tax collector was not importunate and all knew that if relief funds did not come from the government they must come direct from the people.

Nobody supposes that the taxpayers would have consented to the expenditure of the billions under the national recovery program had they not felt that the resulting increase in the national tax bill was the least of several alternative evils.

SWEETNESS OUT OF THE ROCK
Here in this cleft of the hills the sun beats fiercely upon the earth. The green of the spring grass is already wearing thin and the brown of the summer appears. Up there on the higher slopes the lupin and the wild mustard and the poppies spring from the rich earth and make a splendid show. . . . But down here on these rocky slopes no flowers bloom, hardly a weed grows, all the earth has been washed away and you might say, if you were here, that nothing living could survive in this bit of the earth where the stones crop out and the land seems discouraged of all effort.

But when you look again you see marked stumps fixed in the fields. On the stumps are tender green leaves. The stumps are regularly placed and you see that this is a vineyard. . . . You wonder why any man was so foolish as to make a vineyard in this depleted earth, and you muse over the vain, eternally hopeful spirit of humanity. . . . But you are wasting your philosophy, because in this dry corner of this valley, the best grapes grow.

These vines know their business better than you think. They sink their roots deep, they live richly here. And out of this soil, from these grapes, comes a wine that men praise beyond many others. Some fair combination of soil and water and sun and air makes this vineyard superior. No man can tell you why, but no man denies it. . . . And it's an odd thing, but everywhere in the world you will find good vineyards growing in the rocky soil where the grain would not grow and the orchard would wither away.

So standing here, a man might reflect: "Why are not all men as wise as the vine with its seeking roots and its twining tendrils? How is it that some men can survive only in the rich soil, while other men, like these vines, are challenged by adversity and grow stronger in the struggle to survive? Why do some men distill only bitterness from their years, while other men draw sweetness from the rock and create a spirit that is fairer and finer than any wine ever made by man?"

I cannot answer this question. All I know is that I saw those sturdy vines clinging strongly to the rocky soil, and I looked ahead to the rich harvest that would be theirs in the autumn—and my heart was lifted high in praise and exultation.

Little David, aged five, had to open the door and entertain the caller while his mother was putting on her "afternoon" dress and powdering a little. The caller remarked to David: "I presume you are a good little boy and take your bath every day."

David answered, with disgust: "Mother says I ought to, but I don't. And she don't, but I don't either. The bathtub has been stopped up ever since we moved in and Dad said he didn't want to start complainin' to the landlord right off."

"How long have you lived here?" the caller asked.
"Oh, a year or two," responded David.

Silver Speculators Outmaneuvered
Strikes in Oil Fields Next?
Whose Face on $10,000 Bill?

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, April 30.—Silver speculators left themselves wide open to the government.

The normal amount of silver held in New York is from 10 to 15 ounces.

The sum held now is 200 million ounces.

It is not against the law to hold silver.

But it is against public policy (the government contends) to buy it on speculation in anticipation that it will be governmentally monetized and boost the price.

OIL NEXT?
The largest strikes next to occur may be in the oil fields.

That is what Wall Street hears. At least, oil companies are preparing.

"Preparing" means to resist unionization.

Since, however, President Roosevelt has got behind the Wagner labor bill, resisting on a large scale in the old manner will have to take place prior to the passage of the bill.

ON $10,000 BILL
Whose face appears on the $10,000 bill?

Didn't know there was such a bill?

Yes—we've heard there is. A correspondent of this column called up the Federal Reserve bank to ask whose face was on it. They didn't know. Didn't they have $10,000 bills? Oh, plenty of them.

Well, whose face? They'd take a look.

MINUTE BIOG

Democrats in Hoosierland say he is going down to defeat in November. That, of course, remains to be seen.

He is 53 and a lawyer.

He has been a state senator and a judge of the superior court at Indianapolis, his home city.

He was appointed to the U. S. senate Oct. 20, 1925; elected Nov. 2, 1930; re-elected Nov. 6, 1932.

Hoosierland during those years reverberated with cries of "Klan" and "Anti-Klan." Democrats termed Robinson "Klan."

EXECUTIVES

The question arises concerning certain New York stores.

Men and Women getting small salaries allege, since the inception of codes, they are working harder than ever.

Hours of clerks of course were shortened.

But few new persons were hired, according to this contention.

Instead, minor heads of departments at times now work from three to four hours overtime preparing for sales.

FASCISM

Fascists make no secret they would virtually do away with the ballot and parliament. Or make universal suffrage impossible.

In England? Anywhere.

That is the new creed in Europe. In the United States Fascists look upon President Roosevelt as the "greatest obstacle."

That is in contradiction to critics of the president.

TOO MANY PRISON ESCAPES
THERE is something radically wrong with the prison maintenance system in the United States. Hardly a week passes that there is not a report from some section of the country, that desperate prisoners have succeeded in breaking out of jail, or of other penal institutions. Not alone, Dillinger and his gang, but others who are probably just as dangerous, have succeeded in getting out of prisons where they were supposed to be safely locked up for the rest of their lives, and the communities freed of their dangerous activities. Several of the fugitives now being sought are those who were captured by Federal and state agents on kidnapping charges. It is slight wonder that prison sentences do not have the deterring influence that they should have. Many of the prisoners, encouraged by the large number of successful jail breaking escapades, feel that they will be able to make a get-a-way also. Prison sentences should be made to mean just exactly what they are meant to, when pronounced by the courts. There should be a drastic tightening up in prison methods in all states, so that once a desperado is captured, tried and convicted, the country can feel assured that he is removed from preying upon any community further.

STATE RELIEF EMPLOYMENT CRISIS
Phrompt and intelligent action is necessary unless approximately 50,000 workers now carried on LWD jobs in Pennsylvania are to be thrown out of employment. This crisis is due to the fact that there has been a sudden and unexpected slash of $2,400,000 in the Federal Emergency Relief Board grant to the state for May and also to the almost exhausted condition of the cash balance of the State Emergency Relief Board, which totals only $421,650 for next month. The result was a stop order on all jobs for four days while Director Biddle and his aides consider what may be done to save as many of them as possible. To cut off half of the 100,000 men now employed would bring suffering and acute privation to many families. Projects estimated to cost $15,000,000 are under way. To drop them in a partly completed state means a considerable economic loss. The immediate way out of this difficulty would be an increase in the federal allotment. Due to various causes the workers in Pennsylvania have had the worst of it ever since the beginning of federal relief. The records show says the Philadelphia Inquirer that Pennsylvania has been putting up approximately 1.75 cents for every penny contributed by the national government. It is one of fifteen states getting only 45 per cent of its relief funds from Washington; at least thirteen states are getting more than 95 per cent from that source. Fair play demands that it get a greater share of federal money. At present Pennsylvania is not only paying out more than Washington for relief of the jobless within its borders, but is helping Washington to pay the relief bills for thirty-three other states in the nation. These undisputed facts furnish an impressive reason why additional federal relief funds should be allotted to Pennsylvania promptly to prevent the impending unemployment crisis.

IN THE GARDEN
There are no good or bad Or high or low Or happy hearts or sad Where roses grow. There's neither pride nor place, Nor virtue nor disgrace Where roses bloom. Who walks a garden through Never will hear Question of "who are you Drawing so near?"

Americana
General Johnson speaking at Tulsa, Okla., on the recovery program and threatening objectors with force, when at the same meeting some Indians presented him with a pipe of peace. Advertising Soviet gold bonds for sale in the United States as a safe investment "against loss resulting from possible further depreciation of the dollar." Bling persons joining the strikers in the coal fields. Communist slogan "Vote Communist" appearing on the back of souvenir buttons (American flags) distributed in connection with the Legion's Armistice Day celebration in Alexandria, Va. Striking farmers in Iowa placing an effigy labeled Henry Wallace over a barn and paddling it. A Chicago high school youth drawing a loaded .38-caliber pistol on a classroom right in class. Washington house-to-house beggars driving their autos to the section where they intend to "work" that day and then proceeding on foot to ask alms. A woman having to pay $10 ransom to get her cat back from youthful kidnappers. Unemployed men being employed in drive to free Chicago of diptheria.

ROAD MAINTENANCE IS COSTLY
Addition of another mile to the system of improved highways does not necessarily mean one less mile of road to maintain. The old-fashioned up-in-the-middle and down-in-the-gutters dirt road which was maintained by a little filling and a spring scraping cost less to maintain than most types of hard-surface construction. The public is more particular about the dressing up of good roads than it is about the upkeep of bad roads. It has more patience with a neglected mud road than with the little things that go wrong with good roads. Pennsylvania now spends more to clear her improved highways of snow than she spent to maintain her entire highway system in the days when the reputation of her roads was not what it is today. Last winter that state spent $2,000,000 plowing snow and making the hills and curves non-skid with cinders. In the old days the mud road needed the snowplow badly enough but it never got it. And yet winter maintenance is a small item compared with the spring and summer repairs. The best road built is a source of expense and some types of improved construction cost more than $1000 per year per mile to keep in good condition. When America began building good roads it got itself out of the mud and dust but not out of the expense of highway maintenance.

Dinner Stories
Ned—What did Miss West say when you kissed her April 1st? Ted—She told me to call on Friday hereafter, because that was amateur night.
"What do you think of those old Greek and Roman sculptures?" "They're no good, every one of them was a chiseler."
A MODEL TENANT
The Varners live in a rented house. The other day an old friend of the family, who is quite a grand lady, called. Little David, aged five, had to open the door to entertain the caller while his mother was putting on her "afternoon" dress and powdering up a little. The caller remarked to David: "I presume you are a good little boy and take your bath every day?" David answered, with disgust: "Mother says I ought to, but I don't. And she don't and Dad don't either. The bath has been stopped up ever since we moved in. Dad said he didn't want to start complainin' to the landlord right off."
"How long have you lived here?" the caller asked. "Oh, a year or two," responded David.

Memorable Days—April 30, 1524
A warrior so brave that his fame endured for four centuries, was mortally wounded by an arquebus ball while leading French soldiers in battle with Spaniards. Pierre Terrail Bayard, the celebrated Chevalier Bayard, was 41 when he died. Once, with 1,000 men he held 35,000 invaders off for six weeks and compelled them to retreat. Another time, he single-handedly prevented 200 Spaniards from taking a narrow passage. His valor was so well known and admired by the enemy that when he fell, the opposing general wept. Bayard was the inventor of modern military espionage and some of his methods are used today.

April 30, 1768—The first president was inaugurated, in a place no president is supposed to be—Wall St! George Washington, plainly dressed in a dark-brown suit with white silk stockings, took the oath of office upon a gallery of New York city hall at Nassau and Wall streets, from Robert R. Livingston, chancellor of New York state.

April 30, 1798—The navy department was established. First secretary: Benjamin Stoddert of Maryland, a cavalry officer.

April 30, 1803—The aforesaid Robert R. Livingston, sent to Paris to buy the town of New Orleans from the French, purchased it—and $37,937 s. ml. of the other territory including La. Ark. Okla., Kan., Mo. Neb., Iowa, N. D., S. D., Mont. Minn. and portions of Colo. and Wyo., with 85,000 whites and 40,000 slaves!

The prize real estate salesman: Barbe Marbois, acting for Bonaparte. Price: $27,268,622.

April 30, 1812—Louisiana became the 18th state. Motto: Union, Justice and Confidence. Flower: Magnolia.

Notable Nativities April 30—Homer Sille Cummings, b. 1870, attorney-general of the U. S. He likes to read detective stories. Francis Lehar, b. 1870, composer: The Merry Widow. Gypsy Love, etc. Sir John Lubbock, b. 1834, renowned English naturalist and paleontologist. Juliana, b. 1809, only child and heir of Queen Wilhelmina of the kingdom of the Netherlands. Fielding H. Yost, b. 1874, notable football coach of University of Michigan. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., b. 1898, journalist. Timothy A. Smiddy, b. 1877, first minister of the Irish Free State to the largest Irish country—the U. S.

In the "Good Old Days"—Masters had healthy teeth drawn from the mouths of slaves to replace their own decayed canines and incisors. The dentists of those days, who usually were barbers or blacksmiths with a sideline, had the theory that replacements had to be made with living molars, and the teeth were jerked out by the roots and fitted into the empty sockets of milady's or milord's mouth. Such transplantations were, of course, short-lived and the process had to be repeated at intervals.

TWENTY PER CENT FOR TAXES
The high cost of government needs no proof to the man who pays taxes in the multitudinous ways most men pay taxes, yet even the tax-oppressed individual is a little startled when he reads that 20.3 per cent of the nation's income is taken for taxes. When the national income was at its peak and taxes were still climbing it took nearly 12 cents out of every dollar to run the government, but now that the national income is but a shadow of its former robust and rosy self, with taxes still refusing to take off weight, a fifth of each pay check and dividend check is confiscated by local, state and national government. Had it not been for the necessity of providing work for the jobless and doles for the needy the country might have made some headway against the staggering weight of taxation during the last four years. The people have been indulgent only because the tax collector was not importunate and all knew that if relief funds did not come from the government they must come direct from the people. Nobody supposes that the taxpayers would have consented to the expenditure of the billions under the national recovery program had they not felt that the resulting increase in the national tax bill was the least of several alternative evils. New Educational Ideas Projected By Dr. Ben Graham

Subjects Now Taught Should Be Supplemented By Social Science Studies

Educators Gather At Westminster On Saturday; Many Share In Program

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 30.—"We should supplement some subjects now taught in our schools with more social science," Dr. Ben Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, told delegates to the second educational conference at Westminster College here Saturday morning.

Dr. Graham's address, on the subject, "Expansion of the Social Science Curriculum," was the keynote speech of the morning session held in the college chapel at 10 o'clock. Sixty delegates, most of whom were high school principals and school superintendents, attended the conference.

President R. F. Galbreath welcomed the delegates to the conference by saying, "There is a tendency to blame conditions today to industry and to bankers and let the other institutions go Scott-free. Two institutions which should perhaps assume some of the responsibility for present-day conditions are the church and the school."

Dr. W. D. Gamble, superintendent of Sharon schools, acted as chairman of the morning meeting and said by way of introduction that the high school curriculum of yesterday contained little or nothing of social science. "There is a feeling on the part of school men," he said, "that we are not yet meeting the problem. There must be some correlated program of the work of home, church and school toward this end."

Dr. Graham introduced his subject by reviewing conditions since the war, indicating that the World War did not make the world safe for democracy in that three severe dictatorships now are firmly entrenched in Europe. He indicated that the world looks to the United States to make democracy safe for the world and the world safe for democracy.

"Education," he continued, "is the great attempt in America to give equal opportunity. If we are to achieve through democracy liberty and equality to all, it will be achieved through the medium of education. I mean by this liberty of thinking and liberty of life."

Dr. Graham then examined some of our educational procedures since the turn of the century and indicated that material progress came as a result of the growth of scientific knowledge. "We came into the new era," the speaker said, "with a tremendous amount of scientific knowledge and tried to apply it to our mode of living. Material development as a result of our use of science has almost overturned our stability."

"We have been taught through science," he continued, "to expect scientific discoveries and miracles, but we do not have faith in social science experiments."

Pointing out the difficulty of teaching social science, Dr. Graham showed that working with people was far different from working with things. "It calls for far more intelligence for teaching social science than the natural sciences have needed," he said in conclusion.

In the discussions following Dr. Graham's stimulating and provocative talk, Professor Funk of Thiel college, Dr. C. C. Green of New Castle, Prof. P. G. Jones of Sharon, Prof. William Stewart of Elma, Prof. C. E. Rankin of Westminster and many others took part.

Following a luncheon, served in Browne hall at 12:30 to the delegates, the afternoon session got under way at 2 o'clock with Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent of New Castle schools, as chairman. Concerned with problems of adult education, the session was a most interesting one.

Dr. Frederick G. Henke, department of education of Allegheny college, gave a scholarly and extremely interesting address on adult education.

"The average American has by the age of 25 supplied his immediate demand for education," Dr. Henke said. "He will not continue his education unless there is some special incentive."

Dr. Henke then pointed out that the fact that people seem to end their educational experience at the age of 25 does not mean they do not need more. Taking as a point of departure the seven cardinal principles of education, Dr. Henke showed how, in each of seven specific cases, adults need further instruction.

Adults need education in vocations, health, use of leisure, citizenship and all other phases of life, Dr. Henke maintained. "Adults need badly education in matters of physical fitness both for the good of themselves and of their families," he said.

"A large percentage of citizens need instruction in the fundamental processes of life," he continued. "Some have strayed into vocational blind alleys, and present economic problems to society."

A worthy use of leisure is one of the most serious problems facing adults. Too often leisure time is spent in activities detrimental to the individual and to the community. Ignorance and selfishness are back of most crimes, Dr. Henke maintained. "Adults need further education in ethical situations."

Citing the rapid strides made in Denmark in the last 50 years through the medium of adult education, and tracing the rise and influence of the people's high school in Denmark, Dr. Henke closed by recommending that we, the people of the United States, make earnest and consistent use of adult education.

Dr. Green started the discussion following Dr. Henke's talk by telling of some achievement in the emergency adult education classes in New Castle. Prof. Carl E. Rankin indicated that all adult education should not be vocational, but that the cultural should also occupy a place in the scheme. Dr. Gamble cited some activities in Sharon with reference to this type of work. Prof. R. X. Graham of Westminster presented a plan of using newspaper reading as a valuable and effective course in adult education and also as a most effective laboratory for social science teaching in schools.

Professor John D. Lawther, head of the department of psychology and education, was general chairman of the conference, and was responsible for working up the program.

Vocational Farm Education Would Receive Benefit

Federal Aid To Agricultural Education Would Be Provided By Bill

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent
New Castle News

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—Under a bill passed this week by the House, Pennsylvania will receive from Uncle Sam $180,577 a year for three years to aid in education.

The bill would appropriate $3,000,000 annually to be divided among the 48 states. One third of this would be allotted on the basis of farm population for vocational trade and industrial education. One third would be distributed on the basis of non-farm population for vocational trade and industrial education, and the remaining one-third would be apportioned on the basis of rural population for vocational home-economic education. Pennsylvania's share under the three allotments would be $180,577 annually.

Of the total appropriation to the Keystone State, $27,970 would be for vocational agricultural education; $95,285 would be for vocational trade and industrial education; and $57,322 would be for vocational home-economic education.

The bill is now in the Senate for consideration.

"Most of the teaching of social sciences," he indicated, "has been academic." A laboratory method is needed for teaching social science effectively, just as it is needed for the natural sciences," he said.

The scope of social science teaching should also be increased, according to Dr. Graham. Some subjects now taught in schools should be supplanted by more social science. "Fifteen per cent of the traditional requirements in school and college might better be supplanted by social sciences," he said in conclusion.

In the discussions following Dr. Graham's stimulating and provocative talk, Professor Funk of Thiel college, Dr. C. C. Green of New Castle, Prof. P. G. Jones of Sharon, Prof. William Stewart of Etna, Prof. C. E. Rankin of Westminster and many others took part.

Federal Aid To Agricultural Education Would Be Provided By Bill

By ARTHUR C. WIMBER
Special Washington Correspondent
New Castle News

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30.—Under a bill passed this week by the House, Pennsylvania would receive from Uncle Sam $180,577 a year for three years to aid in education.

The bill would appropriate $3,000,000 annually to be divided among the 48 states. One third of this would be allotted on the basis of farm population for vocational agricultural education. One third would be distributed on the basis of non-farm population for vocational trade and industrial education, and the remaining one-third would be apportioned on the basis of rural population for vocational home-economic education. Pennsylvania's share under the three allotments would total $180,577 annually.

Of the total apportionment to the Keystone State, $27,970 would be for vocational agricultural education; $55,285 would be for vocational trade and industrial education; and $57,322 would be for vocational home-economic education. The bill is now in the Senate for consideration.

New Educational Ideas Projected By Dr. Ben Graham

Educators Gather At Westminster On Saturday; Many Share In Program

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 30.—"We should supplant some subjects now taught in our schools with more social science," Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, told delegates to the second educational conference at Westminster College here Saturday morning.

Dr. Graham's address, on the subject, "Expansion of the Social Science Curriculum," was the keynote speech of the morning session held in the college chapel at 10 o'clock. Sixty delegates, most of whom were high school principals and school superintendents, attended the conference.

President R. F. Galbreath welcomed the delegates to the conference by saying, "There is a tendency to blame conditions today to industry and to bankers and let the other institutions go Scott-free. Two institutions which should perhaps assume some of the responsibility for present-day conditions are the church and the school."

Dr. W. D. Gamble, superintendent of Sharon schools, acted as chairman of the morning meeting and said by way of introduction that the high school curriculum of yesterday contained little or nothing of social science. "There is a feeling on the part of school men," he said, "that we are not yet meeting the problem. There must be some correlated program of the work of home, church and school toward this end."

Dr. Graham's Talk
Dr. Graham introduced his subject by reviewing conditions since the war, indicating that the World War did not make the world safe for democracy in that three severe dictatorships now are firmly entrenched in Europe. He indicated that the world looks to the United States to make democracy safe for the world and the world safe for democracy.

"Education," he continued, "is the great attempt in America to give equal opportunity. If we are to achieve this, we must have democracy and equality to all, it will be achieved through the medium of education. I mean by this liberty of thinking and liberty of life."

Dr. Graham then examined some of our educational procedures since the turn of the century and indicated that material progress came as a result of the growth of scientific knowledge. "We came into the new era," the speaker said, "with a tremendous amount of scientific knowledge and tried to apply it to our mode of living. Material development has almost overthrown our stability."

"We have been taught through science," he continued, "to expect scientific discoveries and miracles, but we do not have faith in social science experiments."

Pointing out the difficulty of teaching social science, Dr. Graham showed that working with people things. "It calls for far more intelligence for teaching social science than the natural sciences have needed," he said in conclusion.

In the discussions following Dr. Graham's stimulating and provocative talk, Professor Funk of Thiel college, Prof. P. G. Jones of Sharon, Prof. William Stewart of Etna, Prof. C. E. Rankin of Westminster and many others took part.

Following a luncheon, served in Browne hall at 12:30 to the delegates, the afternoon session got under way at 2 o'clock with Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent of New Castle schools, as chairman. Concerned with problems of adult education, the session was a most interesting one.

Dr. Frederick G. Henke, department of education of Allegheny college, gave a scholarly and extremely interesting address on adult education.

The average American has by the age of 25 supplied his immediate demand for education," Dr. Henke said. "He will not continue his education unless there is some special inducement."

Dr. Henke then pointed out that the fact that people seem to end their educational experience at the age of 25 does not mean they do not need more. Taking as a point of departure the seven cardinal principles of education, Dr. Henke showed how, in each of seven specific cases, adults need further instruction.

Adults need education in vocations, health, use of leisure, ethics, citizenship and all other phases of life, Dr. Henke maintained. "Adults need badly educated in matters of physical fitness both for the good of themselves and of their families," he said.

A large percentage of citizens need instruction in the fundamental processes of life," he continued. "Some have strayed into vocational rebid alleys, and present economic problems to society."

A worthy use of leisure is one of the most serious problems facing adults. Too often leisure time is spent in activities detrimental to the individual and to the community."

Ignorance and selfishness are back of most crimes, Dr. Henke maintained. "Adults need further education in ethical situations."

Citing the rapid strides made by Denmark in the last 50 years thru the medium of adult education, and tracing the rise and influence of the people's high schools in Denmark, Dr. Henke closed by recommending that we, the people of the United States, make earnest and consistent use of adult education.

Dr. Green started the discussion following Dr. Henke's talk by telling of some achievement in the emergency adult education classes in New Castle. Prof. Carl E. Rankin indicated that all adult education should not be vocational, but that the cultural should also occupy a place in the scheme. Dr. Gamble cited some activities in Sharon with reference to this type of work. Prof. R. X. Graham of Westminster presented a plan of using newspaper reading as a valuable and effective course in adult education and also as a most effective laboratory for social science teaching in schools.

Professor John D. Lawther, head of the department of psychology and education, was general chairman of the conference, and was responsible for working up the program.

"I NEED HEALTHY NERVES, TOO, MR. CECIL SMITH, WITH A THRIVING FAMILY TO LOOK OUT FOR"

Robert E. Butterfield, Jr., who has two thriving youngsters, says:

"A father's job gives a fellow plenty of experience with nerve strain, too! Providing for the children keeps you keyed up to concert pitch. Then—coming home from work, with Dick insisting on movies—Bob's eternal tap dancing—that's the zero hour for a father's nerves! Although I smoke all I want, jangled nerves have passed me by. That's because I smoke Camels. Camels have the fine flavor of the choicest, most expensive tobaccos. And I find they never upset my nerves."

Cecil Smith, who rose to the top of the polo world this year with a ten-goal rating, says:

"Polo makes continuous demands on your nervous system. A fraction of a second determines whether or not you can successfully ride your opponent out of a play and a fraction of an inch in your aim may mean a goal—made or missed! Most polo players, myself included, smoke a great deal. And most polo players, myself included again, prefer to smoke Camels. They are milder. I like their flavor and they never upset my nerves."

RWD Workers Protest Curtailing Of Work; Hit State Treatment

Meeting in Taggart Stadium on Saturday afternoon about six hundred RWD workers entered a vigorous protest against the shutting down of the projects in the county, charged discrimination against Pennsylvania and suggested that the reason for discrimination against the state was due to political differences.

The group named Jess Dufford as the temporary chairman of the day and proceeded to adopt a constitution and by-laws. The name "Co-Operative Workers of America" was chosen as the formal name of the organization. Walter V. Tyler addressed the group on the need for action and urged the men to interest the other workers in the newly formed organization. Officers were also named for three months.

The resolution which was presented by Harry Wright and adopted unanimously, follows:

New Castle, Pa.
April 28, 1934.
To The President of the United States
Senators James J. Davis, David A. Reed
Representative J. Howard Swick
Gov. Gifford Pinchot
Fed. Admin. Harry Hopkins
Eric H. Biddle

We, the C. W. A. Workers of America, Lawrence County Unit, of Penn., are compelled to call your attention to our resolution of April 10, 1934 pertaining to the failure of the RWD to properly function to meet our needs. The answer to that resolution has been to entirely suspend all RWD operations in the State of Pennsylvania.

A comparison of facts and figures tend to show a brazen discrimination against this commonwealth and we must have some action to correct his condition at once. We note the State of Penn'a. in 1933 paid 7.37 per cent of all Federal taxes and received in return 4.61 per cent of emergency aid while our neighbor state of Ohio with like industrial conditions paid 4.88 per cent and received 7.70 per cent of emergency aid. Do you attribute this condition to the differences in political affiliations of our elected national and state representatives? Don't you think it is highly important for our national security that our statesmen should cease using the welfare of millions of our citizens as a sacrifice on the altar of political greed?

Our humiliation and fear for the future compel us to make the following resolution:

RESOLVED: We, 12,000 RWD and unemployed workers do now most emphatically protest the shutting down of all RWD projects and demand that immediate action be taken to provide work at living wages for all able-bodied workers and full and adequate relief for all families who are unable to work until industry is willing and compelled to absorb them. The time of playing politics with human misery must end or disastrous results will follow.

Signed:
THE C. W. A. WORKERS OF AMERICA.

President's Popularity Grows, Even Though Public Reaction Is Away From Recovery Program

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S POPULARITY INCREASES

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.
WASHINGTON, April 30.—It's hard to explain, but the obvious fact is that there is a decided public reaction away from President Roosevelt's recovery program, with apparently no public reaction whatever away from President Roosevelt. Contrarywise, it wouldn't be good betting that he isn't actually gaining strength.

NRA unmistakably is disintegrating. CWA is on its way into the discard. AAA is flailing out. General Johnson is a punctured balloon. The brain trust's stock is below par.

Not a cabinet member has scored conspicuous success; some of them none at all, or even less than that. Administration policies are severely criticized, or outrightly denounced.

But the president, accounts from every direction indicate, is as popular as ever; tremendously popular; increasingly popular, maybe, because he is saying a lot, considering the majority he was elected by.

Congress, to be sure, is resentful of him, including numerous lawmakers of his own party alignment. Yet congress is afraid of him, too—including plenty of Republicans. Next November's elections undoubtedly will see considerable Democratic losses in Capitol Hill. When (as now looks like a certainty) the White House tenant is chosen for a second term, it is conceivable that a Republican-labeled congress will come into office with him.

However, this does not necessarily mean (should it happen) that he will be less potent than he is today. Just how much of a Democrat President Roosevelt really is, in a strictly partisan sense, is a question concerning which there is a deal of speculation among politicians.

Among the cognoscenti I believe the consensus to be that he cares far more for a continuation of his own type of governmental philosophy in power than for the domination of any special group and some particular accidentally-inherited name.

That he recognizes old-fashioned Democracy as, in the long run, essentially a minority set-up in this country—that his ultimate aim is the perpetuation of national control by his

RWD Workers Protest Curtailling Of Work; Hit State Treatment

Meeting in Taggart Stadium on Saturday afternoon, about six hundred RWD workers entered a vigorous protest against the shutting down of the projects in the county, charged discrimination against Pennsylvania and suggested that the reason for discrimination against the state was due to political differences.

The group named Jess Dufford as the temporary chairman of the day and proceeded to adopt a constitution and by-laws. The name "Co-Operative Workers of America" was chosen as the formal name of the organization. Walter V. Tyler addressed the group on the need for action and urged the men to interest the other workers in the newly formed organization. Officers were also named for three months.

The resolution which was presented by Harry Wright and adopted unanimously, follows:

New Castle, Pa.
April 28, 1934.

To The President of the United States
Senators James J. Davis, David A. Reed
Representative J. Howard Swick
Gov. Griffith Pinchot
Fed. Admin. Harry Hopkins
Eric H. Biddle

We, the C. W. A. Workers of America, Lawrence County Unit, of Penn., are compelled to call your attention to our resolution of April 10, 1934 pertaining to the failure of the RWD to properly function to meet our needs. The answer to that resolution has been to entirely suspend all RWD operations in the State of Pennsylvania.

A comparison of facts and figures tend to show a brazen discrimination against this commonwealth and we must have some action to correct his condition at once. We note the State of Penn'a. in 1933 paid 7.37 per cent of all Federal taxes and received in return 4.61 per cent of emergency aid while our neighbor state of Ohio with like industrial conditions paid 4.69 per cent and received 7.76 per cent of emergency aid. Do you attribute this condition to the differences in political affiliations of our elected national and state representatives? Don't you think it is highly important for our national security that our statesmen should cease using the welfare of millions of our citizens as a sacrifice on the altar of political greed?

Our humiliation and fear for the future compel us to make the following resolution:

RESOLVED: We, 12,000 RWD and unemployed workers do now most emphatically protest the shutting down of all RWD projects and demand that immediate action be taken to provide work at living wages for all able-bodied workers and full and adequate relief for all families who are unable to work until industry is willing and compelled to absorb them. The time of playing politics with human misery must end or disastrous results will follow.

President's Popularity Grows, Even Though Public Reaction Is Away From Recovery Program

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S POPULARITY INCREASES

By CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—It's hard to explain, but the obvious fact is that there is a decided public reaction away from President Roosevelt's recovery program, with apparently no public reaction whatever away from President Roosevelt. Contrarywise, it wouldn't be good betting that he isn't actually gaining strength.

NRA unmistakably is disintegrating. CWA is on its way into the discard. AAA is fizzling out. General Johnson is a punctured balloon.

The brain trust's stock is below par.

Not a cabinet member has scored conspicuous success; some of them none at all, or even less than that.

Administration policies are severely criticized, or outrightly denounced. But the president, accounts from every direction indicate, is as popular as ever; tremendously popular; increasingly popular, maybe—which is saying a lot, considering the majority he was elected by.

Congress, to be sure, is resentful of him, including numerous lawmakers of his own party alignment. Yet congress is afraid of him, too—including plenty of Republicans.

Next November's elections undoubtedly will see considerable Democratic losses on Capitol Hill. When (as now looks like a certainty) the White House tenant is chosen for a second term, it is conceivable that a Republican-labeled congress will come into office with him.

However, this does not necessarily mean (should it happen) that he will be less potent than he is today. Just how much of a Democrat President Roosevelt really is, in a strictly partisan sense, is a question concerning which there is a deal of speculation among politicians.

Among the cognoscenti I believe the consensus to be that he cares far more for a continuation of his own type of governmental philosophy in power than for the domination of any special group under some particular accidentally-inherited name.

That he recognizes old-fashioned Democracy as, in the long run, essentially a minority set-up in this country—

That his ultimate aim is the perpetuation of national control by his kind of folk, without regard to the interests of any narrowly-designated party organization—

That the terms "Democratic" and "Republican" mean little to him.

That his objective, in short, is a sorting out of the "rights" from the "lefts"—a task which the radicals vainly have been attempting to accomplish ever since the era of populism, or earlier, but with which he seems to be making a fair degree of progress.

If he succeeds, the best guess in Washington is that he himself will be found in a strong position (supported by all but the extremists on both sides) pretty near the center.

President Roosevelt assuredly no longer is rated on Capitol Hill as in excess of a mild liberal.

Equally it is beginning to be realized that the country is only mildly so.

It was radical when he was inaugurated, the depression then being at its nadir, but the generality of sentiment has retrogressed materially, with manifest indications of economic improvement.

The president sensed the change more speedily than congress did. Consequently he sees now (as congress doesn't) that legislation which would have been popular a year ago, today is undesirable.

He is gracefully receding from his immediate post-inauguration policies also.

It's very confusing to the lawmakers.

Gary, Ind., Educator Makes Address Before Legion In Chicago

Addressing a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Cook county council of the American Legion here, Dr. Wirt's remarks were heralded as the Legion's answer to the anticipated American May Day demonstration by the Communists.

The educator quoted freely from statements of ex-Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Raymond Moley, Dr. Rexford Tugwell, secretary of agriculture, Henry Wallace and others in support of his conviction that "we are on our way with a revolution by means of evolution and there is no limit to how far we can go."

State Supreme Court Decision Affects Compensation Cases

MINER'S WIDOWS TO GET LARGER SUMS

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 30.—A $1,000,000 meion soon will be paid between 20,000 widows of men killed at work in recent years and certain industrially disabled employees as a result of the decision handed down by the state supreme court in the Romig case.

In addition, at least $80,000 additional compensation will become available weekly to this group of 30,000 widows as a result of the court's declaration that five and a half days wages constitute the minimum for computing compensation, even in cases where employees were working on a staggered or part time schedule.

Between $350,000 and $500,000, or almost a half of the $1,000,000 additional compensation, will be distributed to widows of miners killed in the anthracite region.

These figures were revealed today by Stephen B. Sweeney, director of Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, in making known that the bureau is notifying all affected persons of their rights to additional payments under the decision.

Sweeney said the court's decision, handed down in the case of Simon P. Romig, a Lancaster foundry worker, affects virtually every compensation agreement written in the last year where the injured or killed employee was working on a staggered schedule of operations.

Temporarily disabled workers, Sweeney said, will receive an average of $3 per week more compensation under the decision. Permanently disabled employees, he added, will get an average of $4 per week more, and families of fatally injured workers will receive between $3 and $5 more per week.

Not Workers' Fault
"Added to these visible benefits,"

Sweeney said, "is the fact that workmen who are injured in the future are assured of the compensation intended for them under the act by the opinion in declaring that it is not the fault of the worker that industrial conditions cut down his period of employment."

Sweeney said he did not believe the decision of the high court would force an increase in workmen's compensation insurance premiums. "Rates," he explained, "are established on the basis of accident experience in previous years. The superior court's decision of May, 1933, which the supreme court reversed, had not been in effect long enough to have lowered rates. Previous to that opinion compensation was paid on the basis of the five-and-one-half-day minimum."

The superior court ruled that employees working staggered schedules were not entitled to the five-and-one-half-day minimum wage compensation rate because they did not work that length of time. This decision was reversed by the supreme court's opinion, which found that the law was so written that five and one-half days with the minimum computation legally allowable.

During the 1933 regular session of the legislature a bill changing the workmen's compensation act to eliminate the five and one-half day minimum was defeated in the House of Representatives.

When Popularity Increases

One feature that shows the remarkable value of World's Tonic is the steadily increasing sale in New Castle. Introduced here many months ago, sales today are greater than ever before.

This fact proves that the people who use World's Tonic are greatly benefited. In no other way can it be accounted for. One man uses it, gets back his health, and tells his neighbors. The neighbor goes through the same experience and he tells others.

But it isn't necessary for you to wait for some one to tell you. You are all run down or constipated or suffer from gastritis, liver, kidney or bladder troubles—it works as a burden and pleasure is not found in life if you are tired out, if you are undetermined, if your strength is undermined, if you need World's Tonic. Don't wait until you are sick in bed. Build up your strength now—get well and stay well!

World's Tonic is sold by Eckerd's, Paisley's, Smith's and all other enterprising druggists.

The sale of World's Tonic today is better than it has ever been. I am sure if you could hear the good things people say about it you would be much pleased. We never handled anything that gave greater satisfaction to our trade.

Weirton Case Before Court

Constitutionality Of Collective Bargaining Clause In Code To Be Argued

DECISION TO BE ALL IMPORTANT

(International News Service)

WILMINGTON, Del., April 30.—Legal combat of supreme importance to business and industry in the new deal will get under way today when the conflict between the United States government and the Weirton Steel Company comes before Judge John P. Nields for adjudication.

In the sombre setting of the federal court, attorneys will argue the constitutionality of the collective bargaining clause in the national industrial recovery act and his decision is destined to be of far-reaching importance.

The argument will be on a motion made by the government, asking that the Weirton Company be temporarily enjoined from restraining its thousands of employees from voting, uncoerced at an election to select representatives of their own choosing for the purpose of collective bargaining.

It will be the first time that the constitutionality of section 7-A of the National Recovery act, which deals with collective bargaining has been subjected to legal argument in a federal court.

The Weirton Company which is a division of National Steel, the "most successful of the independent steel companies" through the depression, will contend that section 7A is in contradiction to the fifth and tenth amendments to the constitution.

The company also will contend that it did not violate the provisions of the national industrial recovery act, even the disputed section 7A.

EIGHT ELIGIBLE FOR NATIONAL MUSIC CONTEST

Will Decide Later Whether Senior High Will Send Winners West

Whether New Castle's winners in the finals of the Pennsylvania Music and Forensic League contest at Johnstown will go west to enter a national contest remains to be determined later, Music Director Joseph S. Replogle announced today.

Rules provide that first and second place winners of the state meet may enter the nation-wide competition.

The woodwind quintet (William Shira, Elmer Gorman, Roger Pecano, Hudson Wilson and William Schoenfeld)—placing first.

Piano solo entrant—Dorothy Fisher, who placed first.

Cornet solo entrant—Ed Candioto, who placed second.

Director Replogle remained in Johnstown until the last of the local contestants had appeared. On the contest stage at 5:30 Saturday evening, the band, which competed Friday afternoon returned home that same day. It placed fourth.

Mr. Replogle today announced that it was the Class of 1933, June division, and not the Class of 1932 provided the finances which took the solo and ensemble groups to Johnstown.

Besides the band groups who competed in the state finals were William Shira, flute; Salvatore Cresce, violin; and Thomas Cramer, trombone. Cresce placed third, Cramer, third; while Shira's exact place was not learned by Mr. Replogle. He was not listed in the first three winners.

HARRISBURG, April 30.—A $1,000,000 megalomaniac will be divided between 20,000 widows of men killed at work in recent years and certain industrially disabled employees as a result of the decision handed down by the state supreme court in the Romig case.

In addition, at least $80,000 additional compensation will become available weekly to this group of 20,000 widows as a result of the court's declaration that five and a half days wages constitute the minimum for computing compensation, even in cases where employees were working on a staggered or part time schedule.

Between $350,000 and $500,000, or almost a half of the $1,000,000 additional compensation, will be distributed to widows of miners killed in the anthracite region.

These figures were revealed today by Stephen B. Sweeney, director of Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, in making known that the bureau is notifying all affected persons of their rights to additional payments under the decision.

Sweeney said the court's decision, handed down in the case of Simon P. Romig, a Lancaster foundry worker, affects virtually every compensation agreement written in the last year where the injured or killed employee was working on a staggered schedule of operations.

Temporarily disabled workers, Sweeney said, will receive an average of $3 per week more compensation under the decision. Permanently disabled employees, he added, will get an average of $4 per week more, and families of fatally injured workers will receive between $3 and $5 more per week.

Not Workers' Fault
Added to these visible benefits,

Sweeney said, "is the fact that workmen who are injured in the future are assured of the compensation intended for them under the act by the wording of Chief Justice Frazer's opinion in declaring that it is not the fault of the worker that industrial conditions cut down his period of employment."

Sweeney said he did not believe the decision of the high court would force an increase in workmen's compensation insurance premiums. "Rates," he explained, "are established on the basis of accident experience in previous years. The superior court's decision of May, 1933, which the supreme court reversed, had not been in effect long enough to have lowered rates. Previous to that opinion compensation was paid on the basis of the five-and-one-half-day minimum."

The superior court ruled that employees working staggered schedules were not entitled to the five-and-one-half-day minimum wage compensation rate because they did not work that length of time. This decision was reversed by the supreme court's opinion, which found that the law was so written that five and one-half days with the minimum computation legally allowable.

During the 1933 regular session of the legislature a bill changing the workmen's compensation act to eliminate the five and one-half day minimum was defeated in the House of Representatives.

When popularity increases

One feature that shows the remarkable value of World's Tonic is the steadily increasing sale in New Castle. Introduced here many months ago, sales today are greater than ever before.

This fact proves that the people who use World's Tonic are greatly benefitted. In no other way can it be accounted for. One man uses it, gets back his health, and tells his neighbor. The neighbor goes through the same experience and he tells others.

But it isn't necessary for you to wait for some one to tell you. If you are all run down or constipated or suffer from gastritis, liver, kidney or bladder trouble—if work is a burden and pleasure is not found in it, if you are tired out, if catarrh is undermining your strength—then you need World's Tonic. Don't wait until you are sick in bed. Build up your strength now—get well and stay well!

World's Tonic is sold by Eckerd's, Paisley's, Smith's and all other enterprising druggists.

The sale of World's Tonic today is better than it has ever been. I am sure if you could hear the good things people say about it you would be much pleased. We never handled anything that gave greater satisfaction to our trade.

Weirton Case Before Court

Constitutionality Of Collective Bargaining Clause In Code To Be Argued

DECISION TO BE ALL IMPORTANT

(International News Service)

WILMINGTON, Del., April 30.—Legal combat of supreme importance to business and industry in the new deal will get under way today when the conflict between the United States government and the Weirton Steel Company comes before Judge John P. Nields for adjudication.

In the sombre setting of the federal court, attorneys will argue the constitutionality of the collective bargaining clause in the national industrial recovery act and his decision is destined to be of far-reaching importance.

The argument will be on a motion made by the government, asking that the Weirton Company be temporarily enjoined from restraining its thousands of employees from voting, uncoerced at an election to select representatives of their own choosing for the purpose of collective bargaining.

It will be the first time that the constitutionality of section 7-A of the National Recovery act, which deals with collective bargaining has been subjected to legal argument in a federal court.

The Weirton Company which is a division of National Steel, the most successful of the independent steel companies through the depression, will contend that section 7A is in contradiction to the fifth and tenth amendments to the constitution.

The company also will contend that it did not violate the provisions of the national industrial recovery act, even the disputed section 7A.

EIGHT ELIGIBLE FOR NATIONAL MUSIC CONTEST

Will Decide Later Whether Senior High Will Send Winners West

Whether New Castle's winners in the finals of the Pennsylvania Music and Forensic League contest at Johnstown will go west to enter a national contest remains to be determined later. Music Director Joseph S. Replogle announced today.

Some of the contestants, Mr. Replogle pointed out, will occur in a state near it. The dates have not been learned.

Crowned with victory as they competed against talented contestants from nine other sections of the state, the school's woodwind quintet of six youths, its piano solo entrant and its cornet solo entrant today qualified to go on the national events. Rules provide that first and second place winners of the state meet may enter the nation-wide competition.

Senior high's eligibles are: The woodwind quintet (William Shira, Elmer Gorman, Roger Pecano, Hudson Wilson and William Schoenfeld)—placing first.

Piano solo entrant—Dorothy Fisher, who placed first.

Cornet solo entrant—Ed Candioto, who placed second.

Director Replogle remained in Johnstown until the last of the local contests had appeared on the contest stage at 5:30 Saturday evening. The band, which competed Friday afternoon returned home that same day. It placed fourth.

Mr. Replogle today announced that it was the Class of 1933, June division, and not the Class of 1932 provided the finances which took the solo and ensemble groups to Johnstown.

Besides the band others who competed in the state finals were William Shira, flute; Salvatore Cresce, violin; and Thomas Cramer, trombone. Cresce placed third, Cramer, third; while Shira's exact place was not learned by Mr. Replogle. He was not listed in the first three winners.

Conference and discussion group meetings were held in the United Presbyterian church, with the Westminster cabinet acting as hosts.

Following registration of delegates late Friday afternoon, the first session took place in the assembly room of the United Presbyterian church at 7:30. Edward L. Stiller, Jr., Uniontown, acting secretary for the area, called the conference to order; and Wilbur Christy, Pittsburgh, president of the Westminster cabinet and chairman of the local committee, greeted the delegates. The response to the greeting was made by Donald Gibbons, Slippery Rock State Teachers College, president of the western Pennsylvania student council.

James Jacobson, Girard, a member of the Westminster cabinet, led the devotional service; and President R. F. Galbreath of Westminster gave the keynote address. At 9:30 Friday evening the semi-annual meeting of the state student council of the Y was held.

Saturday meetings At the assembly Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, the devotional service was directed by the Rev. Dr. J. Ralph Neale, pastor of the United Presbyterian church. Philo C. Dix, Harrisburg, spoke on the subject "Is the College Y Effective?" The second address of the morning was delivered by Rev. Schuyler E. Garth, Pittsburgh.

At 11 o'clock Saturday morning, various training groups held meetings dealing with leadership, programs, finances and interests in college Y. M. C. A. organizations. The conference photograph was taken at noon.

The Westminster Y. W. C. A. cabinet served a buffet luncheon to delegates in the dining room of the United Presbyterian church at 12:15.

The conference banquet was held in the Hillside at 6:15 Saturday night. School song and cheers, short talks, and an address by Dr. Richard Aspinwall, extension secretary, University of West Virginia on the subject, "A Philosophy of Life," featured the conference adjourned at 9 o'clock Saturday night, but most delegates remained for church services Sunday morning.

Delegates were quartered in the homes of members of the three churches in town. Among the advisory committees for the conference were: Dr. John Orr, Dr. L. C. Keller, Prof. Clyde Lady, Prof. W. E. May Let Hunters In Utah Shoot Starving Deer

(International News Service)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Utah sportsmen may be permitted to kill off many of the 3,000 deer ranging on the east side of Beaver mountain, near Circleville, Utah.

Newell B. Cook, state fish and game commissioner, who inspected herds of deer in that vicinity, said that they were dying of starvation. Every blade of grass and forage has been consumed, he said, and foliage on the juniper trees stripped so high that only the older deer can reach it. Scores of deer are forced to drop out of the herd, and fall from sheer exhaustion.

"Ordinarily, sportsmen and the fish and game commission are strongly opposed to killing of female deer," Cook said, "but unless something is done to meet the crisis the whole herd will be lost to the state."

"In view of the pitiful condition prevailing in this area, the board of big game control will probably issue a proclamation permitting the shooting of doe deer on Beaver mountain as an emergency measure to meet the situation."

School in honor of their late founder and teacher. The entire time of the morning was given over to the services. President Harry Gibson presided. Singing of favorite numbers of Mr. McKinney by the class opened the service. Mrs. James Hugh and Mrs. Lillian Butcher Stambaugh rendered "Out of the Ivory Palaces" and "When They Ring those Golden Bells" two of Mr. McKinney's best loved hymns.

Short addresses were made by Welly O. Rush, one of the charter members of the class; A. L. Kissinger, who gave an original reading on "True Liberty"; Frank Shook, Russell Umson, Mont McGill, Robert M. White, Homer C. Drake and the class teacher William H. Butler.

Mrs. Robert A. McKinney, the widow, was a guest of honor at the meeting. A large number of other ladies, friends of the class, were present also.

Conference and discussion group meetings were held in the United Presbyterian church, with the Westminster cabinet acting as hosts.

Following registration of delegates late Friday afternoon, the first session took place in the assembly room of the United Presbyterian church at 7:30. Edward L. Sittler, Jr., Uniontown, acting secretary for the area, called the conference to order; and Wilbur Christy, Pittsburgh, president of the Westminster cabinet and chairman of the local committee, greeted the delegates.

The response to the greeting was made by Donald Gibbons, Slippery Rock State Teachers College, president of the Western Pennsylvania student council.

James Jacobson, Girard, a member of the Westminster cabinet, led the devotional service; and President R. F. Galbreath of Westminster gave the keynote address. At 9:30 Friday evening the semi-annual meeting of the state student council of the Y was held.

Saturday meetings At the assembly Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, the devotional service was directed by the Rev. Dr. J. Ralph Neale, pastor of the United Presbyterian church. Philo C. Dix, Harrisburg, spoke on the subject "Is the College Y Effective?"

The second address of the morning was delivered by Rev. Schuyler E. Garth, Pittsburgh.

lege Y. M. C. A. organizations. The conference photograph was taken at noon.

The conference banquet was held in the Hillside at 6:15 Saturday night. May Let Hunters In Utah Shoot Starving Deer

(International News Service)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Utah sportsmen may be permitted to kill off many of the 3,000 deer ranging on the east side of Beaver mountain, near Circleville, Utah.

Newell B. Cook, state fish and game commissioner, who inspected herds of deer in that vicinity, said that they were dying of starvation. Every blade of grass and forage has been consumed, he said, and foliage on the juniper trees stripping so high that only the older deer can reach it. Scores of deer are forced to drop out of the herd, and fall from sheer exhaustion.

"Ordinarily, sportsmen and the fish and game commission are strongly opposed to killing of female deer," Cook said, "but unless something is done to meet the crisis the whole herd will be lost to the state."

"In view of the pitiful condition prevailing in this area, the board of big game control will probably issue a proclamation permitting the shooting of doe deer on Beaver mountain as an emergency measure to meet the situation."

Compensation Is Increased

State Supreme Court Decision Affects Compensation Cases

MINER'S WIDOWS TO GET LARGER SUMS

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)
HARRISBURG, April 30.—A $1,000,000 megalon soon will be divided between 20,000 widows of men killed at work in recent years and certain industrially disabled employees as a result of the decision handed down by the state supreme court in the Romig case.

In addition, at least $80,000 additional compensation will become available weekly to this group of 20,000 widows as a result of the court's declaration that five and a half days wages constitute the minimum for computing compensation, even in cases where employees were working on a staggered or part time schedule.

Between $350,000 and $500,000, or almost a half of the $1,000,000 additional compensation will be distributed to widows of miners killed in the anthracite region.

Figures Revealed
These figures were revealed today by Stephen B. Sweeney, director of Bureau of Workers' Compensation, in making known that the bureau is notifying all affected persons of their rights to additional payments under the decision.

Sweeney said the court's decision, handed down in the case of Simon P. Romig, a Lancaster foundry worker, affects virtually every compensation agreement written in the last year where the injured or killed employee was working on a staggered schedule of operations.

Temporarily disabled workers, Sweeney said, will receive an average of $3 per week more compensation under the decision. Permanently disabled employees, he added, will get an average of $4 per week more, and families of fatally injured workers will receive between $3 and $5 more per week.

Not Workers' Fault
"Added to these visible benefits," Sweeney said, "is the fact that workmen who are injured in the future are assured of the compensation intended for them under the act by the wording of Chief Justice Pitzer's opinion in declaring that it is not the fault of the worker that industrial conditions cut down his period of employment."

Sweeney said he did not believe the decision of the high court would force an increase in workers' compensation insurance premiums. "Rates," he explained, "are established on the basis of accident experience in previous years. The superior court's decision of May, 1933, which the supreme court reversed, had not been in effect long enough to have lowered rates. Previous to that opinion compensation was paid on the basis of the five-and-one-half-day minimum."

The superior court ruled that employees working staggered schedules were not entitled to the five-and-one-half-day minimum wage compensation rate because they did not work that length of time. This decision was reversed by the supreme court's opinion, which found that the law was so written that five and one-half days with the minimum computation legally allowable.

During the 1933 regular session of the legislature a bill changing the workers' compensation act to eliminate the five and one-half day minimum was defeated in the House of Representatives.

Weirton Case Before Court

DECISION TO BE ALL IMPORTANT

(International News Service)
WILMINGTON, Del., April 30.—Legislation of supreme importance to business and industry in the new deal will get under way today when the conflict between the United States government and the Weirton Steel Company comes before Judge John P. Nields for adjudication.

In the sombre setting of the federal court, attorneys will argue the constitutionality of the collective bargaining clause in the national industrial recovery act and his decision is destined to be of far-reaching importance.

The argument will be on a motion made by the government, asking that the Weirton Company be temporarily enjoined from restraining its thousands of employees from voting, uncoerced at an election to select representatives of their own choosing for the purpose of collective bargaining.

It will be the first time that the constitutionality of section 7-A of the National Recovery act, which deals with collective bargaining has been subjected to legal argument in a federal court.

The Weirton Company which is a division of National Steel, the most successful of the independent steel companies through the depression, will contend that section 7A is in contradiction to the fifth and tenth amendments to the constitution.

The company also will contend that it did not violate the provisions of the national industrial recovery act, even the disputed section 7A.

Whether New Castle's winners in the finals of the Pennsylvania Music and Forensic League contest at Johnstown will go west to enter a national contest remains to be determined later.

Some of the contestants, Mr. Replogle pointed out, will vociferously while others will be held in a state near it. The dates have not been learned.

Crowned with victory as they competed against talented contestants from nine other sections of the state, the school's woodwind quintet of six youths, its piano solo entrant and its cornet solo entrant today qualified to go on the national event. Rules provide that first and second place winners of the state meet may enter the nation-wide competition.

Senior high's eligibles are: The woodwind quintet (William Shira, Elmer Gorman, Roger Pecano, Hudson Wilson and William Schoenfeld) placing first.

Piano solo entrant—Dorothy Fisher, who placed first.

Cornet solo entrant—Ed Candioti, who placed second.

Director Replogle remained in Johnstown until the last of the local contest stage at 10 o'clock Sunday evening. The band, which competed Friday afternoon returned home that same day. It placed fourth.

Mr. Replogle today announced that the Class of 1933, June division, and the Class of 1932 provided the finest which took the solo and ensemble groups to Johnstown.

Besides the band others who competed in the state finals were William Shira, flute; Salvatore Cresce, violin; and Thomas Cramer, trombone. Cresce placed third, Cramer, third; while Shira's exact place was not learned by Mr. Replogle. He was not listed in the first three winners.

Shannon Will Be Here Tuesday

Leaving Ellwood City about 12:30 standard time the party will come on to New Castle for lunch. At 2 o'clock standard time there will be a public reception for voters in the lobby of The Castleton hotel.

Governor Shannon will be unable to stay very long in one place as he has 25 counties to cover before the primary election on May 15. He has many friends in New Castle and will be pleased to meet them as well as new friends in The Castleton between 2 and 3:30.

SECOND U.P. CHURCH GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY ENDS

Large Audiences At All Services

FORMER PASTORS
MAKE ADDRESSES

The fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Second United Presbyterian church came to a close Sunday with the church filled to capacity for the Sunday school, morning, young people's and evening church services, with splendid spiritual services marking the close of four days of fellowship, reminiscences and worship.

The other three United Presbyterian churches of the city joined with the Second church at the evening services and almost 1200 United Presbyterians and friends joined in the closing service.

Honor Former Members
The Sabbath school service honored former members and superintendents with Dr. A. J. Randles addressing the assembled departments and Dr. J. Q. A. McDowell and Dr. Andrew Magill making brief remarks.

A most impressive communion service marked the morning with especially fitting music by the choir, under the direction of Elizabeth Rose, and a solo, "Hear Thou My Prayer" by Joseph O. Strimmar.

Dr. Magill made the sacramental address: Dr. Randles the prayer of consecration and thanksgiving; Dr. McDowell administered the sacrament to many members and former members. A communion service which had been used years ago in the Shannago church was on display on the altar.

At 6 o'clock the young people of the four United Presbyterian churches had a joint session and they were addressed by Dr. J. Ralph Neal of New Wilmington.

Evening Service
The evening service opened with a beautiful organ and piano number by Misses Kathryn Allen and Katherine McMillin; as the former pastors and the three visiting pastors of the city and Dr. McDowell took their places in the pulpit. Dr. Randles had the invocation; Dr. S. E. Irvine of the First church the responsive reading; Dr. Samuel B. Copeland of the Third church the scripture lesson and Dr. McDowell the prayer. Ted Strimmar sang a solo, "Behold the Master Passes By," and the choir, the anthem "Repent Ye".

Dr. S. C. Gamble, of Butler, delivered the sermon of the evening, taking his text from the Twenty Third Psalm, "He Restored My Soul".

The closing prayer was offered by Rev. D. L. Ferguson of the Highland church and the splendid services came to a close while the choir sang Handel's most appropriate "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah.

At the close of the service those who had not greeted the former pastors before were given the opportunity of renewing friendships.

Italian Priest Shot To Death

Priest Seeks To Save Life Of Sister-In-Law At Hands
Of Crazy Carpenter

JERSEY CITY HOME
SCENE OF TRAGEDY

(International News Service)
JERSEY CITY, April 30.—Jersey City's "Little Italy" was plunged into sorrow today as wailing groups mourned for Father Julius Moscati, kindly, silver-haired pastor who sacrificed his own life yesterday to protect his widowed sister-in-law from death at the hands of a crazed carpenter.

Peeling raw high against the carpenter, Dominick Marra, 43 years old and the father of six children, Marra, enraged because he was unable to collect a bill of $45 from Mrs. Christina Moscati, the priest's sister-in-law, was blazing away at her with a revolver when Father Moscati returned to the parish house after conducting final mass at the Roman Catholic church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

Leaping in front of Mrs. Moscati to shield her from the shower of lead, the little priest was shot through the heart. His sacrifice may have been in vain, for Mrs. Moscati, struck by three bullets, was in a critical condition today.

Scouts Of Second U.P. Win First Aid Meet In Midst Of Anniversary

It looks as if a scout troop believes in adding its bit to the occasion when its parent institution puts on a celebration. The Second U. P. church is observing its golden anniversary, so troop 12, sponsored by that church, concluded it was time to make a noise on its own account.

The result of the county first aid meet at senior high school Friday night showed that the boys made good; the team representing that troop taking first place. The team standings were as follows:

1—Troop 12, Second U. P. 428.5
2—Klwanis V-37 428.2
3—Troop 3, First U. P. 427.0
4—Troop V-18, Highland U. P. 426.2
5—Troop V-15, First Chris. 426.7
6—Bessemer troop 1 426.2
7—Ellwood City Shelby V-7 426.2
8—East Brook troop 1 427.5

The winning team was hard pressed by V-37, about a cat's whisker behind, with two more Presbyterian teams coming right along close up. It was good to see county teams like East Brook, Bessemer and Ellwood City represented, and all hands are already planning for the next year's contest. Troops 12 and V-37 won the right to represent Lawrence county at the May 19 finals at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh.

Experts Do Judging.

A great deal of the smooth operation of the meet is due to the excellent judges staff, these men coming from several out-of-town districts, and giving splendid service. Joseph Wickline, chief judge and division safety supervisor, acted in that capacity, ably supported by Ray Applegate, W. J. Beck, Wayne Young, F. E. Curtis, N. A. Bothwell, Nicholas F. Roher, F. D. McPheeters and R. S. Henry as team judges.

H. R. Applegate, W. A. Webb served as field judges; with recorders, P. J. Vonderau and J. H. Templeton, and timekeeper, E. Miller.

Commissioner Ralph Davis, chairman of Red Cross First Aid in Lawrence county, acted as announcer, and was also in charge of securing the judges' staff. He also asked that the teams be on hand next year, and spoke of recognition which may be given by means of certificates, at that meet. (Some standard performance mark will be worked out in this line.)

Great credit is due several of the teams which through lack of equipment or inexperience, did not feel they stood a good chance, but who went in and entered nevertheless. The fact that only 11 full points separated the winners from the low team, showed how close the work was judged; but on the "500 points per problem" system, the judges were never at a loss for markings.

The New Castle high band finals, school graduations and church plays handicapped several troops badly. It looks as if the contest next year will have to be held in a larger place than the senior high gymnasium, as many leaders who did not have teams in this time are talking of their team for the "Silver Jubilee" year of scouting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Durnall were callers in New Castle Monday.

Frank Wimer and Frank Patterson were in Butler on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Patterson spent Sunday with friends of Renfrew.

Miss Thelma Patterson is spending a few weeks with friends in Boston.

The center school taught by Paul Wimer, closed a successful term of school April 20.

The Jacksonville W. C. T. U. meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Stella Book instead of Mrs. Tillie Jordan on May 3.

Frank Wimer was pleasantly surprised when his children and grandchildren gathered at home for supper on Saturday evening to celebrate his 60th birthday anniversary. The candles on the cake glowed brightly on the pretty appointed table around which the guests were seated while a delicious menu was served. Music and chatting were the diversions of the evening. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wimer and children: Velma, Alice and Mona; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooper and children, Gladys and Glenn; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wimer and son Jack; Mr. and Mrs. John Wimer and children, Geraldine, Kenneth and Taurretta; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wimer, Mrs. Frank Wimer, Glenn Wimer, and Mrs. E. E. Fish and children, Howard, Harold and Betty of Harrisville.

Legion Lobby To Be Discussed

National Commander Hayes Will Tell Of Legion's Legislative Efforts

CHECKUP SHOWS PLANS PROGRESS

Ivor V. Davis, general chairman of the national commander's banquet, to be given by the Perry S. Gaston post, American Legion, for the legionnaires and their friends from western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio, stated today that National Commander Edward A. Hayes will discuss briefly the "powerful American Legion lobby" on his appearance here May 12.

Much ado has been made regarding the alleged powerful lobby maintained by the American Legion at Washington. It is a fact, however, Legion heads assert, that this lobby consists of but one person, Col. John Thomas Taylor, whose salary is less than $5,000 per year. Col. Taylor is the only legislative representative that the American Legion maintains in Washington.

At the meeting of the general committee on the banquet plans, held in the Legion Home, it developed that arrangements for the evening are progressing nicely with a heavy demand for tickets in the outlying district.

This would indicate that local residents who expect to attend the event should make their reservations as speedily as possible as the time of the banquet is close at hand.

Large Audiences At All Services

FORMER PASTORS MAKE ADDRESSES

The fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Second United Presbyterian church came to a close Sunday with the Sunday school, morning, young people's and evening church service, with splendid spiritual services marking the close of four days of fellowship, reminiscences and worship.

The other three United Presbyterian churches of the city joined with the Second church at the evening services and almost 1200 United Presbyterians and friends joined in the closing service.

Honor Former Members
The Sabbath school service honored former members and superintendents with Dr. A. J. Randles addressing the assembled departments and Dr. J. Q. A. McDowell and Dr. Andrew Magill making brief remarks.

A most impressive communion service marked the morning with especially fitting music by the choir, under the direction of Elizabeth Rose, and a solo, "Hear Thou My Prayer" by Joseph O. Stritmatter.

Dr. Magill made the sacramental address: Dr. Randles the prayer of consecration and thanksgiving; Dr. McDowell administered the sacrament to many members and former members. A communion service which had been used years ago in the Shenango church was on display on the altar.

At 6 o'clock the young people of the four United Presbyterian churches had a joint session and they were addressed by Dr. J. Ralph Neal of New Wilmington.

Evening Service
The evening service opened with a beautiful organ and piano number by Misses Kathryn Allen and Katherine McMillin; as the former pastors and the three visiting pastors of the city and Dr. McDowell took their places in the pulpit. Dr. Randles had the invocation; Dr. S. E. Irvine of the First church the responsive reading; Dr. Samuel B. Copeland of the Third church the scripture lesson and Dr. McDowell the prayer. Ted Stritmatter sang a solo, "Behold the Master Passes By," and the choir, the anthem "Rejoice Ye."

Dr. S. C. Gamble, of Butler, delivered the sermon of the evening, taking his text from the Twenty Third Psalm, "He Restoreth My Soul." The closing prayer was offered by Rev. D. L. Ferguson of the Highland church and the splendid services came to a close while the choir sang Handel's most appropriate "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah.

At the close of the service those who had not greeted the former pastors before were given the opportunity of renewing friendships.

Italian Priest Shot To Death

JERSEY CITY HOME SCENE OF TRAGEDY

(International News Service)
JERSEY CITY, April 30—Jersey City's "little Italy" was plunged into sorrow today as wailing groups mourned for Father Julius Moscati, kindly, silver-haired pastor who sacrificed his own life yesterday to protect his widowed sister-in-law from death at the hands of a crazed carpenter.

Feeling ran high against the carpenter, Dominick Marra, 43 years old and the father of six children. Marra, enraged because he was unable to collect a bill of $45 from Mrs. Christina Moscati, the priest's sister-in-law, was blazing away at her with a revolver when Father Moscati returned to the parish house after conducting final mass at the Roman Catholic church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

Leaping in front of Mrs. Moscati to shield her from the shower of lead, the little priest was shot through the heart. His sacrifice may have been in vain, for Mrs. Moscati, struck by three bullets, was in a critical condition today.

Scouts Of Second U.P. Win First Aid Meet In Midst Of Anniversary

It looks as if a scout troop believes in adding its bit to the occasion when its parent institution puts on a celebration. The Second U. P. church is observing its golden anniversary, so troop 12, sponsored by that church, concluded it was time to make a noise on its own account.

The result of the county first aid meet at senior high school Friday night showed that the boys made good; the team representing that troop taking first place. The team standings were as follows:

1—Troop 12, Second U. P. 498.5
2—Kiwanis V-37 498.2
3—Troop 3, First U. P. 497.0
4—Troop V-18, Highland U. P. 496.2
5—Troop V-15, First Chris. 490.7
6—Bessemer troop 1 490.2
7—Ellwood City Shelby V-7 489.2
8—East Brook troop 1 487.5

The winning team was hard pressed by V-37, about a cat's whisker behind, with two more Presbyterian teams coming right along close up. It was good to see county teams like East Brook, Bessemer and Ellwood City represented, and all hands are already planning for the next year's contest. Troops 12 and V-37 won the right to represent Lawrence county at the May 19 finals at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh.

ZION NOTES

Experts Do Judging.

A great deal of the smooth operation of the meet is due to the excellent judges staff, these men coming from several out-of-town districts, and giving splendid service. Joseph Wickline, chief judge and division safety supervisor, acted in that capacity, ably supported by Ray Applegate, W. J. Beck, Wayne Young, F. E. Curtis, N. A. Bothwell, Nicholas F. Rohrer, F. D. McPheeters and R. S. Henry as team judges.

H. R. Applegate, W. E. Peters, J. C. McLaughlin and A. A. Webb served as field judges; with recorders, P. J. Vonderau and J. H. Templeton, and timekeeper, B. Miller.

Commissioner Ralph Davis, chairman of Red Cross First Aid in Lawrence county, acted as announcer, and was also in charge of securing the judges' staff. He also asked that the teams be on hand next year, and spoke of recognition which may be given by means of certificates, at that meet. (Some standard performance mark will be worked out in this line.)

Great credit is due several of the teams which through lack of equipment or inexperience, did not feel they stood a good chance, but who went in and entered nevertheless. The fact that only 11 full points separated the winners from the low team, showed how close the work was judged; but on the "500 points per problem" system, the judges were never at a loss for markings. The New Castle high band finals, school graduations and church plays handicapped several troops badly. It looks as if the contest next year will have to be held in a larger place than the senior high gymnasium, as many leaders who did not have teams in this time are talking of their team for the "Silver Jubilee" year of scouting.

ZION NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Durnall were callers in New Castle Monday.

Frank Wimer and Frank Patterson were in Butler on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Patterson spent Sunday with friends of Renfrew.

The center school taught by Paul Wimer, closed a successful term of school April 20.

Frank Wimer was pleasantly surprised when his children and grandchildren gathered at home for supper on Saturday evening to celebrate his 60th birthday anniversary. The candles on the cake glowed brightly on the pretty appointed table around which the guests were seated while a delicious menu was served. Music and chatting were the diversions of the evening. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wimer and children, Velma, Alice and Mona; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooper and children, Gladys and Glenn; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wimer and son Jack; Mr. and Mrs. John Wimer and children, Geraldine, Kenneth and Taurita; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wimer, Mrs. Frank Wimer, Glenn Wimer, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Legion Lobby To Be Discussed

National Commander Hayes Will Tell Of Legion's Legislative Efforts

CHECKUP SHOWS PLANS PROGRESS

Ivor V. Davis, general chairman of the national commander's banquet, to be given by the Perry S. Gaston post, American Legion, for the legionnaires and their friends from western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio, stated today that National Commander Edward A. Hayes will discuss briefly the "powerful American Legion lobby" on his appearance here May 12.

Much ado has been made regarding the alleged powerful lobby maintained by the American Legion at Washington. It is a fact, however, Legion heads assert, that this lobby consists of but one person, Col. John Thomas Taylor, whose salary is less than $5,000 per year. Col. Taylor is the only legislative representative that the American Legion maintains in Washington.

At the meeting of the general committee on the banquet plans, held in the Legion Home, it developed that arrangements for the evening are progressing nicely with a heavy demand for tickets in the outlying district.

This would indicate that local residents who expect to attend the event should make their reservations as speedily as possible as the time of the banquet is close at hand.

Sittler, Jr., Uniontown, acting secretary for the area, called the conference to order; and Wilbur Christy, Pittsburgh, president of the Westminster cabinet and chairman of the local committee, greeted the delegates.

lege Y. M. C. A. organizations. The conference photography was taken at noon.

School song and cheers, short talks, and an address by Dr. Erickson, Aspinwall, extension secretary, University of West Virginia on the subject, "A Philosophy of Life," featured the conference adjourned at 9 o'clock Saturday night, but most delegates remained for church services Sunday morning.
Delegates were quartered in the homes of members of the three churches in town. Among the advisory committee for the conference were: Dr. John Orr, Dr. I. C. Keller, Prof. Clyde Lady, Prof. W. E. Purvis, Rev. Dr. J. Ralph Neale, Mr. W. W. Mendenhall and Mr. R. V. Davis. The student committee in charge included Mr. Christy, John Gerstner, G. Hall Todd, Robert E. Douglass and James Jacobsen.

May Let Hunters In Utah Shoot Starving Deer

(International News Service)
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Utah sportsmen may be permitted to kill off many of the 3,000 deer ranging on the east side of Beaver mountain, near Circleville, Utah.
Newell B. Cook, state fish and game commissioner, who inspected herds of deer in that vicinity, said that they were dying of starvation. Every blade of grass and forage has been consumed, he said, and foliage on the juniper trees stripped so high that only the older deer can reach it. Scores of deer are forced to drop out of the herd, and fall from sheer exhaustion.
"Ordinarily, sportsmen and the fish and game commission are strongly opposed to killing of female deer," Cook said, "but unless something is done to meet the crisis the whole herd will be lost to the state."
"In view of the pitiful condition prevailing in this area, the board of big game control will probably issue a proclamation permitting the shooting of doe deer on Beaver mountain as an emergency measure to meet the situation."

SUSAN'S ELOPED

by Louise Major McKittrick

McClure
Fiction

Naturally her mother was terribly upset! So she went to her Board meeting, leaving Jeremy in charge. Which, of course, she never should have done.

WHEN one fine day he discovered that the good old sock was more or less empty, Jeremy cheerfully exchanged his velvet smock for overalls, an easel or a step-ladder, an artistic temperament for a deep content—and became an honest-to-goodness painter.

And so on a promising spring morning, Jeremy and the implements of his calling rang the bell of a suburban igloo (or so it was shaped) entirely at peace with the world. After an interval, during which Jeremy shifted his ladder, the door was flung open, and an agitated woman peered at him.

"Oh—you're the painter! I'd forgotten. I'm so upset—You see Susan's eloped!"

Jeremy, whose tranquility had been unruffled by this disclosure, raised a polite eyebrow as he stepped over the sill and deposited the ladder between a rubber plant and a golf bag; and then deciding that common humanity demanded something more of him said kindly, "Indeed?"

Warned by his sympathy the woman's confidence blossomed anew. "She left a letter on the piano telling me not to worry. Imagine telling a mother—a mother, Mr.—"

"Jones."

"Jones. Telling a mother who has given the best years of her life unstintingly to her children—not to worry. How," asked Susan's mother militantly, "can I help worrying?"

"How?" echoed Jeremy. Then remembering he was being paid by the hour, "May I take my things to the basement?"

"But the horrible thing is I'm due in half an hour at a Board meeting, and there's a benefit bridge in the afternoon." After a bit of concentration Jeremy's employer was inspired. "I wonder if you'd do some phoning for me!"

"I'm the painter," Jeremy suggested, "and I work by the hour."

"Oh that's all right. My maid comes about eleven. Here—the telephone's in the breakfast nook."

In the breakfast nook were confusion, the telephone and an array of used china.

"I haven't had time to clean up—I was just wondering if you could manage—"

"I work by the hour." Right cheerily Jeremy entered into the spirit of the occasion. "I'll be glad to wash 'em for you."

"Oh—would you!" He was rewarded by a glance of heart-felt gratitude. "And, oh yes, the phoning. I'll give you the numbers if I can find—"

"The telephone book?" Jeremy produced it from beneath a loaf of bread and a pitcher of syrup.

"Thanks. You see, Susan didn't say in her letter whom she'd eloped with so I thought her friends might know." Susan's mother plunged into the contents of the directory. "She used to go with a terrible man—Bill Evans—but I don't think she's seen him for a year or so. First we'll call that Mumford boy. I wonder where he lives. His name is Charles, but I don't know his father's name." Her finger traveled down the page. "Could it be Parkland Place? Or sixty-three hundred Washington? That sounds more like it. Here," she pushed the phone towards him, "call Cabany 2264. Ask him if he's eloped. If not ask if he has any idea who it can be. I'll get my hat on while you do that. And if you can't learn anything from Charles call Betty Minton. She's in Beverly Place—though I believe I did hear she'd gotten married a month or so ago. Oh well, you can find her." The good woman hurried away.

As she nodded Jeremy gently removed the leather jacket, without which she seemed slimmer than ever, for her frock was a brief straight garment of dull red. With the artlessness of a child she pulled off her hat, and Jeremy saw that her short black hair was as crisp as a Japanese doll's.

CHEERFULLY Jeremy dislodged a green cheret, a yellow compact and two magazines and seated himself on the telephone stool. In a few moments he was connected with a Mr. Charles Mumford.

"Mr. Mumford? Are you acquainted with a young woman, whose name is Susan?"

Jeremy was thoroughly enjoying himself.

"Susan?" Mr. Mumford's voice was suspicious. "Susan who?"

"Her mother forgot to tell me her last name. Let's put it another way. Have you eloped this morning?"

When with a sudden expletive Mr. Mumford replaced his receiver, Jeremy began philosophically looking in the directory for Betty Minton, who might have been married; but before he could locate the damsel his employer was back prepared for departure. In a purple suit and hat she was an impressive figure.

"Thanks so much—did you find anything? I must go now, but please do everything you can to trace Susan. You might call the police. And another thing. Will you phone the grocer and order a steak and some vegetables for dinner? I'm sorry to bother you—"

"It's quite all right," Jeremy assured her. "Who is your grocer?"

"What? I wonder—If Valerie, my youngest daughter, calls and wants to stay out at school or go somewhere tell her to come straight home. She's run over her allowance and then I'm punishing her for staying out till three o'clock with Ed Bower. She should be here by twelve. See that she eats a good lunch. The child has no appetite for anything but chocolates."

"I thought," interposed Jeremy, "your maid came at eleven."

"She does. Every day but Thursday."

"And this is Thursday. You want me to get lunch and feed Valerie."

"Yes, if you have time."

"And wash the dishes?"

"Well, I don't like to impose on you. I mean it's slightly irregular, but if you don't mind—"

"I have all the time in the world," said Jeremy happily. "Shall I get dinner?"

"No, tell Valerie to do that. It won't hurt her. I feel we're spoiling our youth, Mr.—"

"Yes, aren't we!" agreed Jeremy with enthusiasm.

"There's Valerie—won't wash out her own stockings, let alone make up a bed. I wish," said Valerie's mother feelingly, "somebody with a firm hand would take charge of the girl."

"I'll take care of her," Jeremy promised. "And phone Weber."

"Weber? I trade at Brennen's."

"Brennen's, then," amended Jeremy.

For an instant the good woman hesitated seemingly uneasy in her mind; but when Jeremy suggested, "You'll be late for your meeting," she brightened and with an incoherent sentence of farewell hurried off.

BY noon Jeremy had got the house in order and prepared a modest lunch, which he laid in the chastened breakfast nook. Feeling that his position required a kitchen apron rather than overalls he was thus domestically attired and painting in the hall when the phone rang.

It was a girl calling; a girl who asked uncertainly, "Is Mrs. Marlow in?"

"No," said Jeremy. "I don't expect her in till late in the afternoon."

"Who's there?" Obviously the voice was relieved.

"Just I."

"And who are you—?"

"The painter."

"Oh, thanks."

That was all. Jeremy returned to his labors.

When, a few minutes later, the doorbell rang, the painter admitted a slim girl in a leather jacket and a small hat cocked impudently over one eye. However, there was nothing impudent about her as she said, "I'm Valerie Marlowe. I forgot my key." And ran upstairs. Rather she seemed scared.

She was back shortly and without a glance at Jeremy walked straight to the door.

"Wait," Jeremy laid aside his brush. "I'm afraid I can't let you go. You see I promised your mother I'd look after you this afternoon. I guaranteed that you'd eat luncheon and prepare dinner."

As if the strength had gone from her the girl leaned against the door.

"Our lunch is ready in the breakfast room."

Jeremy untied the apron. "Shall we eat?"

With an unexpected movement Valerie jerked open the door, which Jeremy immediately closed. She was so near him the sight of her red trembling lips moved him to pity—and to a curiously new emotion.

"Somebody's waiting for me," she said at last, rather desperately.

"I know. Ed Bower. Well, I'm waiting for you too, and in all modesty I think I may safely say I am the better man. Will you come?"

As she nodded Jeremy gently removed the leather jacket, without which she seemed slimmer than ever, for her frock was a brief straight garment of dull red. With the artlessness of a child she pulled off her hat, and Jeremy saw that her short black hair was as crisp as a Japanese doll's.

IN silence the two sat down for luncheon; in silence Jeremy served his charge and helped himself to the simple fare.

For a time she ate passively, seemingly lost in thought. Then she asked challengingly, "What next? You aren't going to object to my taking a short stroll, are you?"

A faint quiver of a smile touched her lips. "A walk after lunch is good for the digestion."

"We'll trust to luck on the digestion today. Won't you have more chipped beef?" Hopefully Jeremy extended the dish.

"I detest chipped beef. You'll let me take a nap?"

Jeremy helped himself to chipped beef. "Certainly, if you'll curl up on the sofa. I can't have you knotting sheets and escaping down the drain pipe."

Pushing back her plate Valerie set her elbows squarely on the table. "Just who are you?" Her eyes, he noted, were smoky black. "How do you happen to be my Guardian Angel?"

"Guardian Angels should be accepted, not questioned." Rising Jeremy began stacking the dishes. "Will you help clear the table? If you are contemplating matrimony as a career," he adopted a conversational tone, "I'd advise a little practical experience in housework. These days comparatively few men can provide maids for their wives. For instance if you married me you'd be expected to cook and sew, wash dishes, scrub—"

"Not scrub!" she protested. "I wouldn't scrub."

He turned to smile at her. "Are you considering the proposition?"

"It hasn't been offered yet." She picked up the bread plate and was following him into the kitchen when he stopped her.

"Whether you're applying or not I'd suggest that you carry something in each hand. It saves steps. Bring in the sugar bowl."

Silently they washed and dried the dishes.

"By the way," said Valerie as she closed the cupboard door, "Ed Bower has my bag in his car. Perhaps I'd better get it."

"I'll get it for you."

Jeremy untied his apron and hung it on a peg. "While you wait here. And don't get a bright idea and lock me out because if you do I'll spend a peaceful afternoon on the front porch—and I'm working by the hour."

In a Ford parked half-way down the block Jeremy found an impatient youth with red hair and Valerie's hatbox; and after a short conversation with this gentleman Jeremy returned with the bag, which he presented to its owner.

Jeremy had resumed overalls and his normal occupation when he was startled by a surprising apparition. A gay little figure in scarlet pajamas, robe and slippers announced, "I'm ready for my nap," and curled up on the sofa. Turning his back upon the sofa Jeremy immersed himself in the pursuit of his vocation, but without his former tranquility. The girl on the sofa was making no effort to court sleep. Jeremy knew instinctively that her steady dark eyes were fixed upon him. He could feel them.

ONCE the phone rang, and after a short curt interview with someone who was undoubtedly Ed Bower, Valerie returned to the sofa and her contemplation of Jeremy.

Therefore he was relieved when it was time to say gruffly, "You'd better be getting into your apron. Your mother expects you to prepare dinner."

Valerie yawned daintily. (Jeremy thought the pose out of character.) "What am I to prepare?"

"Steak and artichokes—"

"What are artichokes?"

"Vegetables. Your mother told me to order vegetables, and I ordered 'em. Spinach, cauliflower, onions, carrots—"

The prospective cook had fled.

At five o'clock Jeremy (in street attire) peeked into the kitchen to find a demure ginghamed figure paring potatoes. Quietly he tiptoed down the hall until he came face to face with a young woman who had just entered the house. Her keyring hung loose in her hand as she stared at Jeremy.

"Well, Susan," said the man, "I understand you've eloped."

"Eloped?" A faint flush tinted the thin aristocratic features of Susan Marlowe. "What are you talking about? And what are you doing here?"

"I'm the major domo—the good fairy—what you will, and I work by the hour. Look out," he warned. "Wet paint. I came here to paint, but your mother preferred having me investigate your elopement. I phoned a Mr. Charles Mumford—"

"Jeremy," Susan Marlowe's voice was shrunk, pale, "you're trying to be funny—"

"Look at this." Solemnly the painter extracted from his pocket a note which she read with incredulity.

"But it isn't mine! Even if it isn't signed Mother should have known it was Valerie's. Besides," Susan was suddenly bitter, "she should have known I hadn't the spunk!"

"I still remember your refined script—I haven't roomed with Bill Evans for nothing. However that may be, the way things stand your mother thinks you're married. Why don't you elope—now?"

"Please—Please don't." But though she protested against the monstrous suggestion that same monstrous suggestion might have been a charm which changed in a twinkling a severe young woman into a startled girl thrilling and glowing, delightfully confused at the bare thought of the thing he advised. "Mother would—"

"Mother's playing bridge." Susan was unconvinced. "Ever since Father died Mother's said it would kill her if we left her."

"But it hasn't killed her! It hasn't caused her to cancel one engagement!"

"But—she hates Bill—"

"She'd hate any man who wanted to marry you. Susan, a mother's wishes should be respected only when she is a mother—not a selfish woman with no love for her children. Bill's my best friend. I've watched you two."

"You were beautiful in love, Susan; Bill was magnificent. I've seen you waiting endlessly, hopelessly. Susan, when you came in that door you were a bitter, thwarted—spinster. Now at the thought of marrying Bill you're growing lovelier—more desirable every minute."

Something leaped in the girl's eyes; her body seemed to tremble with new life. "But Valerie—"

The major domo—good fairy—interrupted—"Don't worry, I'm taking care of Valerie."

"Jeremy," said Susan breathlessly, "you're a darling really!" And for the first time in five years she did a deliciously reckless thing. She kissed Jeremy and laughing at his astonishment, fled.

DID you say you were working by the hour?"

It was Valerie who asked the question: Valerie still a trifle defiant. "I cut myself on those old potatoes, though I don't suppose you care." Protectively she nursed the injured finger.

But before Jeremy could offer condolences her mood changed. Her eyes were stormy as she said, "I'm glad for Susan—but why didn't you let me go? You know what Mother's like. You fairly pushed Susan into Bill's arms—and kept me here feeding me chipped beef! I'd have been happy with Ed—or anyway I couldn't have been as miserable as I am now!" A tear slid to the end of her lashes.

"It's been awful—since my father died. I came back for his picture. I couldn't go without it." Desperately she tried to wink back the tear; then wiped it off with the back of her hand. "Why didn't you let me go?"

"Because," Jeremy was very gentle with her, "I thought you were too young to know your own mind. That is I didn't believe you really loved this Ed Bower—"

"I'm twenty," said Valerie sturdily.

"Thank goodness! I was afraid you were only seventeen. Now I won't have to wait so long before you're old enough to know your own mind. You see, Valerie," happily Jeremy leaned against his ladder, "I want you for myself!"

can't have you knotting sheets and escaping down the drain pipe."

Pushing back her plate Valerie set her elbows squarely on the table. "Just who are you?" Her eyes, he noted, were smoky black. "How do you happen to be my Guardian Angel?"

"Guardian Angels should be accepted, not questioned." Rising Jeremy began stacking the dishes. "Will you help clear the table? If you are contemplating matrimony as a career," he adopted a conversational tone, "I'd advise a little practical experience in housework. These days comparatively few men can provide maids for their wives. For instance if you married me you'd be expected to cook and sew, wash dishes, scrub—"

"Not scrub!" she protested. "I wouldn't scrub."

He turned to smile at her. "Are you considering the proposition?"

"It hasn't been offered yet." She picked up the bread plate and was following him into the kitchen when he stopped her.

"Whether you're applying or not I'd suggest that you carry something in each hand. It saves steps. Bring in the sugar bowl."

Silently they washed and dried the dishes.

"By the way," said Valerie as she closed the cupboard door, "Ed Bower has my bag in his car. Perhaps I'd better get it."

"I'll get it for you."

Jeremy untied his apron and hung it on a peg. "While you wait here. And don't get a bright idea and lock me out because if you do I'll spend a peaceful afternoon on the front porch—and I'm working by the hour."

In a Ford parked half-way down the block Jeremy found an impatient youth with red hair and Valerie's hatbox; and after a short conversation with this gentleman Jeremy returned with the bag, which he presented to its owner.

Jeremy had resumed overalls and his normal occupation when he was startled by a surprising apparition. A gay little figure in scarlet pajamas, robe and slippers announced, "I'm ready for my nap," and curled up on the sofa. Turning his back upon the sofa Jeremy immersed himself in the pursuit of his vocation, but without his former tranquility. The girl on the sofa was making no effort to court sleep. Jeremy knew instinctively that her steady dark eyes were fixed upon him. He could feel them . . .

ONCE the phone rang, and after a short curt interview with someone who was undoubtedly Ed Bower, Valerie returned to the sofa and her contemplation of Jeremy.

Therefore he was relieved when it was time to say gruffly, "You'd better be getting into your apron. Your mother expects you to prepare dinner."

Valerie yawned daintily. (Jeremy thought the pose out of character.) "What am I to prepare?"

"Steak and artichokes—"

"What are artichokes?"

"Vegetables. Your mother told me to order vegetables, and I ordered 'em. Spinach, cauliflower, onions, carrots—" The prospective cook had fled.

At five o'clock Jeremy (in street attire) peeked into the kitchen to find a demure ginghamed figure paring potatoes. Quietly he tiptoed down the hall until he came face to face with a young woman who had just entered the house. Her keyring hung loose in her hand as she stared at Jeremy.

"Well, Susan," said the man, "I understand you've eloped."

"Eloped?" A faint flush tinted the thin aristocratic features of Susan Marlowe. "What are you talking about? And what are you doing here?"

"I'm the major domo—the good fairy—what you will, and I work by the hour. Look out," he warned. "Wet paint. I came here to paint, but your mother preferred having me investigate your elopement. I phoned a Mr. Charles Mumford—"

"Jeremy," Susan Marlowe's voice was shrunk, pale, "you're trying to be funny—"

"Look at this." Solemnly the painter extracted from his pocket a note which she read with incredulity.

"But it isn't mine! Even if it isn't signed Mother should have known it was Valerie's. Besides," Susan was suddenly bitter, "she should have known I hadn't the spunk!"

"I still remember your refined script—I haven't roomed with Bill Evans for nothing. However that may be, the way things stand your mother thinks you're married. Why don't you elope—now?"

"Please—Please don't." But though she protested against the monstrous suggestion that same monstrous suggestion might have been a charm which changed in a twinkling a severe young woman into a startled girl thrilling and glowing, delightfully confused at the bare thought of the thing he advised.

"Mother would—"

"Mother's playing bridge."

Susan was unconvinced. "Ever since Father died Mother's said it would kill her if we left her."

"But it hasn't killed her! It hasn't caused her to cancel one engagement!"

"But—she hates Bill—"

"She'd hate any man who wanted to marry you. Susan, a mother's wishes should be respected only when she is a mother—not a selfish woman with no love for her children. Bill's my best friend. I've watched you two . . . You were beautiful in love, Susan; Bill was magnificent. I've seen you waiting endlessly, hopelessly. Susan, when you came in that door you were a bitter, thwarted—spinster. Now at the thought of marrying Bill you're growing lovelier—more desirable every minute."

Something leaped in the girl's eyes; her body seemed to tremble with new life. "But Valerie—"

The major domo—good fairy—interrupted—"Don't worry, I'm taking care of Valerie."

"Jeremy," said Susan breathlessly, "you're a darling really!" And for the first time in five years she did a deliciously reckless thing. She kissed Jeremy and laughing at his astonishment, fled.

DID you say you were working by the hour?"

It was Valerie who asked the question: Valerie still a trifle defiant. "I cut myself on those old potatoes, though I don't suppose you care." Protectively she nursed the injured finger.

But before Jeremy could offer condolences her mood changed. Her eyes were stormy as she said, "I'm glad for Susan—but why didn't you let me go? You know what Mother's like. You fairly pushed Susan into Bill's arms—and kept me here feeding me chipped beef! I'd have been happy with Ed—or anyway I couldn't have been as miserable as I am now!" A tear slid to the end of her lashes.

"It's been awful—since my father died. I came back for his picture. I couldn't go without it." Desperately she tried to wink back the tear; then wiped it off with the back of her hand. "Why didn't you let me go?"

"Because," Jeremy was very gentle with her, "I thought you were too young to know your own mind. That is I didn't believe you really loved this Ed Bower—"

"I'm twenty," said Valerie sturdily.

"Thank goodness! I was afraid you were only seventeen. Now I won't have to wait so long before you're old enough to know your own mind. You see, Valerie," happily Jeremy leaned against his ladder, "I want you for myself!"

SECOND U.P. CHURCH GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY ENDS

Large Audiences At All Services

FORMER PASTORS MAKE ADDRESSES

The fiftieth anniversary celebration of the Second United Presbyterian church came to a close Sunday with the church filled to capacity for the Sunday school, morning, young people's and evening church service, with splendid spiritual services marking the close of four days of fellowship, reminiscences and worship.

The other three United Presbyterian churches of the city joined with the Second church at the evening services and almost 1200 United Presbyterians and friends joined in the closing service.

Honor Former Members

The Sabbath school service honored former members and superintendents with Dr. A. J. Randles addressing the assembled departments and Dr. J. Q. A. McDowell and Dr. Andrew Magill making brief remarks.

A most impressive communion service marked the morning with especially fitting music by the choir, under the direction of Elizabeth Rose, and a solo, "Hear Thou My Prayer" by Joseph O. Strimmar.

Dr. Magill made the sacramental address: Dr. Randles the prayer of consecration and thanksgiving; Dr. McDowell administered the sacrament to many members and former members. A communion service which had been years ago in the Shenango church was on display on the altar.

At 6 o'clock the young people of the four United Presbyterian churches had a joint session and they were addressed by Dr. J. Ralph Neal of New Wilmington.

Evening Service

The evening service opened with a beautiful organ and piano number by Misses Kathryn Allen and Katherine McMillin; as the former pastors and the three visiting pastors of the city and Dr. McDowell took their places in the pulpit. Dr. Randles had the invocation; Dr. S. E. Irvine of the First church the responsive reading; Dr. Samuel B. Copeland of the Third church the scripture lesson and Dr. McDowell the prayer. Ted Strimmar sang a solo, "Behold the Master Passes By," and the choir, the anthem "Repeat Ye."

Dr. S. C. Gamble, of Butler, delivered the sermon of the evening, taking his text from the Twenty Third Psalm, "He Restoreth My Soul". The closing prayer was offered by Rev. D. L. Ferguson of the Highland church and the splendid services came to a close while the choir sang Handel's most appropriate "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah.

At the close of the service those who had not greeted the former pastors before were given the opportunity of renewing friendships.

Italian Priest Shot To Death

JERSEY CITY HOME SCENE OF TRAGEDY

(International News Service) JERSEY CITY, April 30—Jersey City's "little Italy" was plunged into sorrow today as waiting groups mourned for Father Julius Moscati, kindly, silver-haired pastor who sacrificed his own life yesterday to protect his widowed sister-in-law from death at the hands of a crazed carpenter.

Feeling ran high against the carpenter, Dominick Marra, 43 years old and the father of six children. Marra, enraged because he was unable to collect a bill of $45 from Mrs. Christina Moscati, the priest's sister-in-law, was blazing away at her with a revolver when Father Moscati returned to the parish house after conducting final mass at the Roman Catholic church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

Leaping in front of Mrs. Moscati to shield her from the shower of lead, the little priest was shot through the heart. His sacrifice may have been in vain, for Mrs. Moscati, struck by three bullets, was in a critical condition today.

Scouts Of Second U.P. Win First Aid Meet In Midst Of Anniversary

It looks as if a scout troop believes in adding its bit to the occasion when its parent institution puts on a celebration. The Second U. P. church is observing its golden anniversary, so troop 12, sponsored by that church, concluded it was time to make a noise on its own account.

The result of the county first aid meet at senior high school Friday night showed that the boys made good; the team representing that troop taking first place. The team standings were as follows: 1—Troop 12, Second U. P. 498.5 2—Kiwanis V-37 498.2 3—Troop 3, First U. P. 497.0 4—Troop V-18, Highland U. P. 496.2 5—Troop V-15, First Chris. 490.7 6—Bessemer troop 1 489.2 7—Ellwood City Shelby V-7 489.2 8—East Brook troop 1 487.5 The winning team was hard pressed by V-37, about a cat's whisker behind, with two more Presbyterian teams coming right along close up. It was good to see county teams like East Brook, Bessemer and Ellwood City represented, and all hands are already planning for the next year's contest. Troops 12 and V-37 won the right to represent Lawrence county at the May 19 finals at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh.

Experts Do Judging. A great deal of the smooth operation of the meet is due to the excellent judges staff, these men coming from several out-of-town districts, and giving splendid service. Joseph Wickline, chief judge and division safety supervisor, acted in that capacity, ably supported by Ray Applegate, W. J. Beck, Wayne Young, F. E. Curtis, N. A. Bothwell, Nicholas F. Roher, F. D. McPheeters and R. S. Henry as team judges. H. R. Applegate, W. E. Peters, J. C. McLaughlin and A. A. Webb served as field judges, with recorders, P. J. Vonderau and J. H. Templeton, and timekeeper, B. Miller.

Commissioner Ralph Davis, chairman of Red Cross First Aid in Lawrence county, acted as announcer, and was also in charge of securing the judges' staff. He also asked that the teams be on hand next year, and spoke of recognition which may be given by means of certificates, at that meet. (Some standard performance mark will be worked out in this line.)

Great credit is due several of the teams which through lack of equipment or inexperience, did not feel they stood a good chance, but who went in and entered nevertheless. The fact that only 11 full points separated the winners from the low team, showed how close the work was judged; but on the "500 points per problem" system, the judges were never at a loss for markings. The New Castle high band finals, school graduations and church plays handicapped several troops badly. It looks as if the contest next year will have to be held in a larger place than the senior high gymnasium, as many leaders who did not have teams in this time are talking of their team for the "Silver Jubilee" year of scouting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Durnall were callers in New Castle Monday.

Frank Wimer and Frank Patterson were in Butler on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Patterson spent Sunday with friends of Renfrew.

Miss Thelma Patterson is spending a few weeks with friends in Boston.

The center school taught by Paul Wimer, closed a successful term of school April 20.

The Jacksonville W. C. T. U. meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Stella Book instead of Mrs. Tillie Jordan on May 3.

Frank Wimer was pleasantly surprised when his children and grandchildren gathered at home for supper on Saturday evening to celebrate his 60th birthday anniversary. The candles on the cake glowed brightly on the pretty appointed table around which the guests were seated while a delicious menu was served. Music and chatting were the diversions of the evening. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wimer and children, Verna, Alice and Mona; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooper and children, Gladys and Glenn; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wimer and son Jack; Mr. and Mrs. John Wimer and children, Geraldine, Kenneth and Taurina; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wimer, Mrs. Frank Wimer, Glenn Wimer, Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Fish and children, Howard, Harold and Betty of Harrisville.

Nearly 100,000 government savings certificates are being bought in Great Britain every week.

Legion Lobby To Be Discussed

CHECKUP SHOWS PLANS PROGRESS

Ivor V. Davis, general chairman of the national commander's banquet, to be given by the Perry S. Gaston post, American Legion, for the legionnaires and their friends from western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio, stated today that National Commander Edward A. Hayes will discuss briefly the "powerful American Legion lobby" on his appearance here May 12.

Much ado has been made regarding the alleged powerful lobby maintained by the American Legion at Washington. It is a fact, however, Legion heads assert, that this lobby consists of but one person, Col. John Thomas Taylor, whose salary is less than $5,000 per year. Col. Taylor is the only legislative representative that the American Legion maintains in Washington.

At the meeting of the general committee on the banquet plans, held in the Legion Home, it developed that arrangements for the evening are progressing nicely with a heavy demand for tickets in the outlying district.

This would indicate that local residents who expect to attend the event should make their reservations as speedily as possible as the time of the banquet is close at hand.

SUSAN'S ELOPED

by Louise Major McKittrick

McClure
Fiction

Naturally her mother was terribly upset! So she went to her Board meeting, leaving Jeremy in charge. Which, of course, she never should have done.

WHEN one fine day he discovered that the good old sock was more or less empty, Jeremy cheerfully exchanged his velvet smock for overalls, an easel or a step-ladder, an artistic temperament for a deep content—and became an honest-to-goodness painter.

And so on a promising spring morning, Jeremy and the implements of his calling rang the bell of a suburban igloo (or so it was shaped) entirely at peace with the world. After an interval, during which Jeremy shifted his ladder, the door was flung open, and an agitated woman peered at him.

"Oh—you're the painter! I'd forgotten. I'm so upset—You see Susan's eloped!"

Jeremy, whose tranquility had been unruffled by this disclosure, raised a polite eyebrow as he stepped over the sill and deposited the ladder between a rubber plant and a golf bag; and then deciding that common humanity demanded something more of him said kindly, "Indeed?"

Warmed by his sympathy the woman's confidence blossomed anew. "She left a letter on the piano telling me not to worry. Imagine telling a mother—a mother, Mr.—"

"Jones."

"Jones. Telling a mother who has given the best years of her life unstintingly to her children—not to worry. How," asked Susan's mother militantly, "can I help worrying?"

"How?" echoed Jeremy. Then remembering he was being paid by the hour, "May I take my things to the basement?"

"But the horrible thing is I'm due in half an hour at a Board meeting, and there's a benefit bridge in the afternoon." After a bit of concentration Jeremy's employer was inspired. "I wonder if you'd do some phoning for me!"

"I'm the painter," Jeremy suggested, "and I work by the hour."

"Oh that's all right. My maid comes about eleven. Here—the telephone's in the breakfast nook."

In the breakfast nook were confusion, the telephone and an array of used china.

"I haven't had time to clean up—I was just wondering if you could manage—"

"I work by the hour." Right cheerily Jeremy entered into the spirit of the occasion. "I'll be glad to wash 'em for you."

"Oh—would you?" He was rewarded by a glance of heart-felt gratitude. "And, oh yes, the phoning. I'll give you the numbers if I can find—"

"The telephone book?" Jeremy produced it from beneath a loaf of bread and a pitcher of syrup.

"Thanks. You see, Susan didn't say in her letter whom she'd eloped with so I thought her friends might know." Susan's mother plunged into the contents of the directory.

"She used to go with a terrible man—Bill Evans—but I don't think she's seen him for a year or so. First we'll call that Mumford boy. I wonder where he lives. His name is Charles, but I don't know his father's name."

Her finger traveled down the page. "Could it be Parkland Place? Or sixty-three hundred Washington? That sounds more like it. Here," she pushed the phone towards him, "call Cabany 2264. Ask him if he's eloped. If not ask if he has any idea who it can be. I'll get my hat on while you do that. And if you can't learn anything from Charles call Betty Minton. She's in Beverly Place—though I believe I did hear she'd gotten married a month or so ago. Oh well, you can find her." The good woman hurried away.

"I know. Ed Bower. Well, I'm waiting for you too, and in all modesty I think I may safely say I am the better man. Will you come?"

As she nodded Jeremy gently removed the leather jacket, without which she seemed slimmer than ever, for her frock was a brief straight garment of dull red. With the artlessness of a child she pulled off her hat, and Jeremy saw that her short black hair was as crisp as a Japanese doll's.

CHEERFULLY Jeremy dislodged a green beret, a yellow compact and two magazines and seated himself on the telephone stool. In a few moments he was connected with a Mr. Charles Mumford.

"Mr. Mumford? Are you acquainted with a young woman, whose name is Susan?" Jeremy was thoroughly enjoying himself.

"Susan?" Mr. Mumford's voice was suspicious. "Susan who?"

"Her mother forgot to tell me her last name. Let's put it another way. Have you eloped this morning?"

When with a sudden expletive Mr. Mumford replaced his receiver, Jeremy began philosophically looking in the directory for Betty Minton, who might have been married; but before he could locate the damsel his employer was back prepared for departure. In a purple suit and hat she was an impressive figure.

"Thanks so much—did you find anything? I must go now, but please do everything you can to trace Susan. You might call the police. And another thing. Will you phone the grocer and order a steak and some vegetables for dinner? I'm sorry to bother you—"

"It's quite all right," Jeremy assured her. "Who is your grocer?"

"What? I wonder—If Valerie, my youngest daughter, calls and wants to stay out at school or go somewhere tell her to come straight home. She's run over her allowance and then I'm punishing her for staying out till three o'clock with Ed Bower. She should be here by twelve. See that she eats a good lunch. The child has no appetite for anything but chocolates."

"I thought," interposed Jeremy, "your maid came at eleven."

"She does. Every day but Thursday."

"And this is Thursday. You want me to get lunch and feed Valerie."

"Yes, if you have time."

"And wash the dishes?"

"Well, I don't like to impose on you. I mean it's slightly irregular, but if you don't mind—"

"I have all the time in the world," said Jeremy happily. "Shall I get dinner?"

"No, tell Valerie to do that. It won't hurt her. I feel we're spoiling our youth, Mr.—"

"Yes, aren't we!" agreed Jeremy with enthusiasm.

"There's Valerie—won't wash out her own stockings, let alone make up a bed. I wish," said Valerie's mother feelingly, "somebody with a firm hand would take charge of the girl."

"I'll take care of her," Jeremy promised.

"And phone Weber—"

"Weber? I trade at Brennen's."

"Brennen's, then," amended Jeremy.

For an instant the good woman hesitated seemingly uneasy in her mind; but when Jeremy suggested, "You'll be late for your meeting," she brightened and with an incoherent sentence of farewell hurried off.

BY noon Jeremy had got the house in order and prepared a modest lunch, which he laid in the chastened breakfast nook. Feeling that his position required a kitchen apron rather than overalls he was thus domestically attired and painting in the hall when the phone rang.

It was a girl calling; a girl who asked uncertainly, "Is Mrs. Marlow in?"

"No," said Jeremy. "I don't expect her in till late in the afternoon."

"Who's there?" Obviously the voice was relieved.

"Just I."

"And who are you?"

"The painter."

"Oh, thanks."

That was all. Jeremy returned to his labors.

When, a few minutes later, the doorbell rang, the painter admitted a slim girl in a leather jacket and a small hat cocked impudently over one eye. However, there was nothing impudent about her as she said, "I'm Valerie Marlowe. I forgot my key." And ran upstairs.

She was back shortly and without a glance at Jeremy walked straight to the door.

"Wait," Jeremy laid aside his brush. "I'm afraid I can't let you go. You see I promised your mother I'd look after you this afternoon. I guaranteed that you'd eat luncheon and prepare dinner."

As if the strength had gone from her the girl leaned against the door.

"Our lunch is ready in the breakfast room," Jeremy untied the apron. "Shall we eat?"

With an unexpected movement Valerie jerked open the door, which Jeremy immediately closed. She was so near him the sight of her red trembling lips moved him to pity—and to a curiously new emotion.

"Somebody's waiting for me," she said at last, rather desperately.

"I know. Ed Bower. Well, I'm waiting for you too, and in all modesty I think I may safely say I am the better man. Will you come?"

As she nodded Jeremy gently removed the leather jacket, without which she seemed slimmer than ever, for her frock was a brief straight garment of dull red. With the artlessness of a child she pulled off her hat, and Jeremy saw that her short black hair was as crisp as a Japanese doll's.

IN silence the two sat down for luncheon; in silence Jeremy served his charge and helped himself to the simple fare.

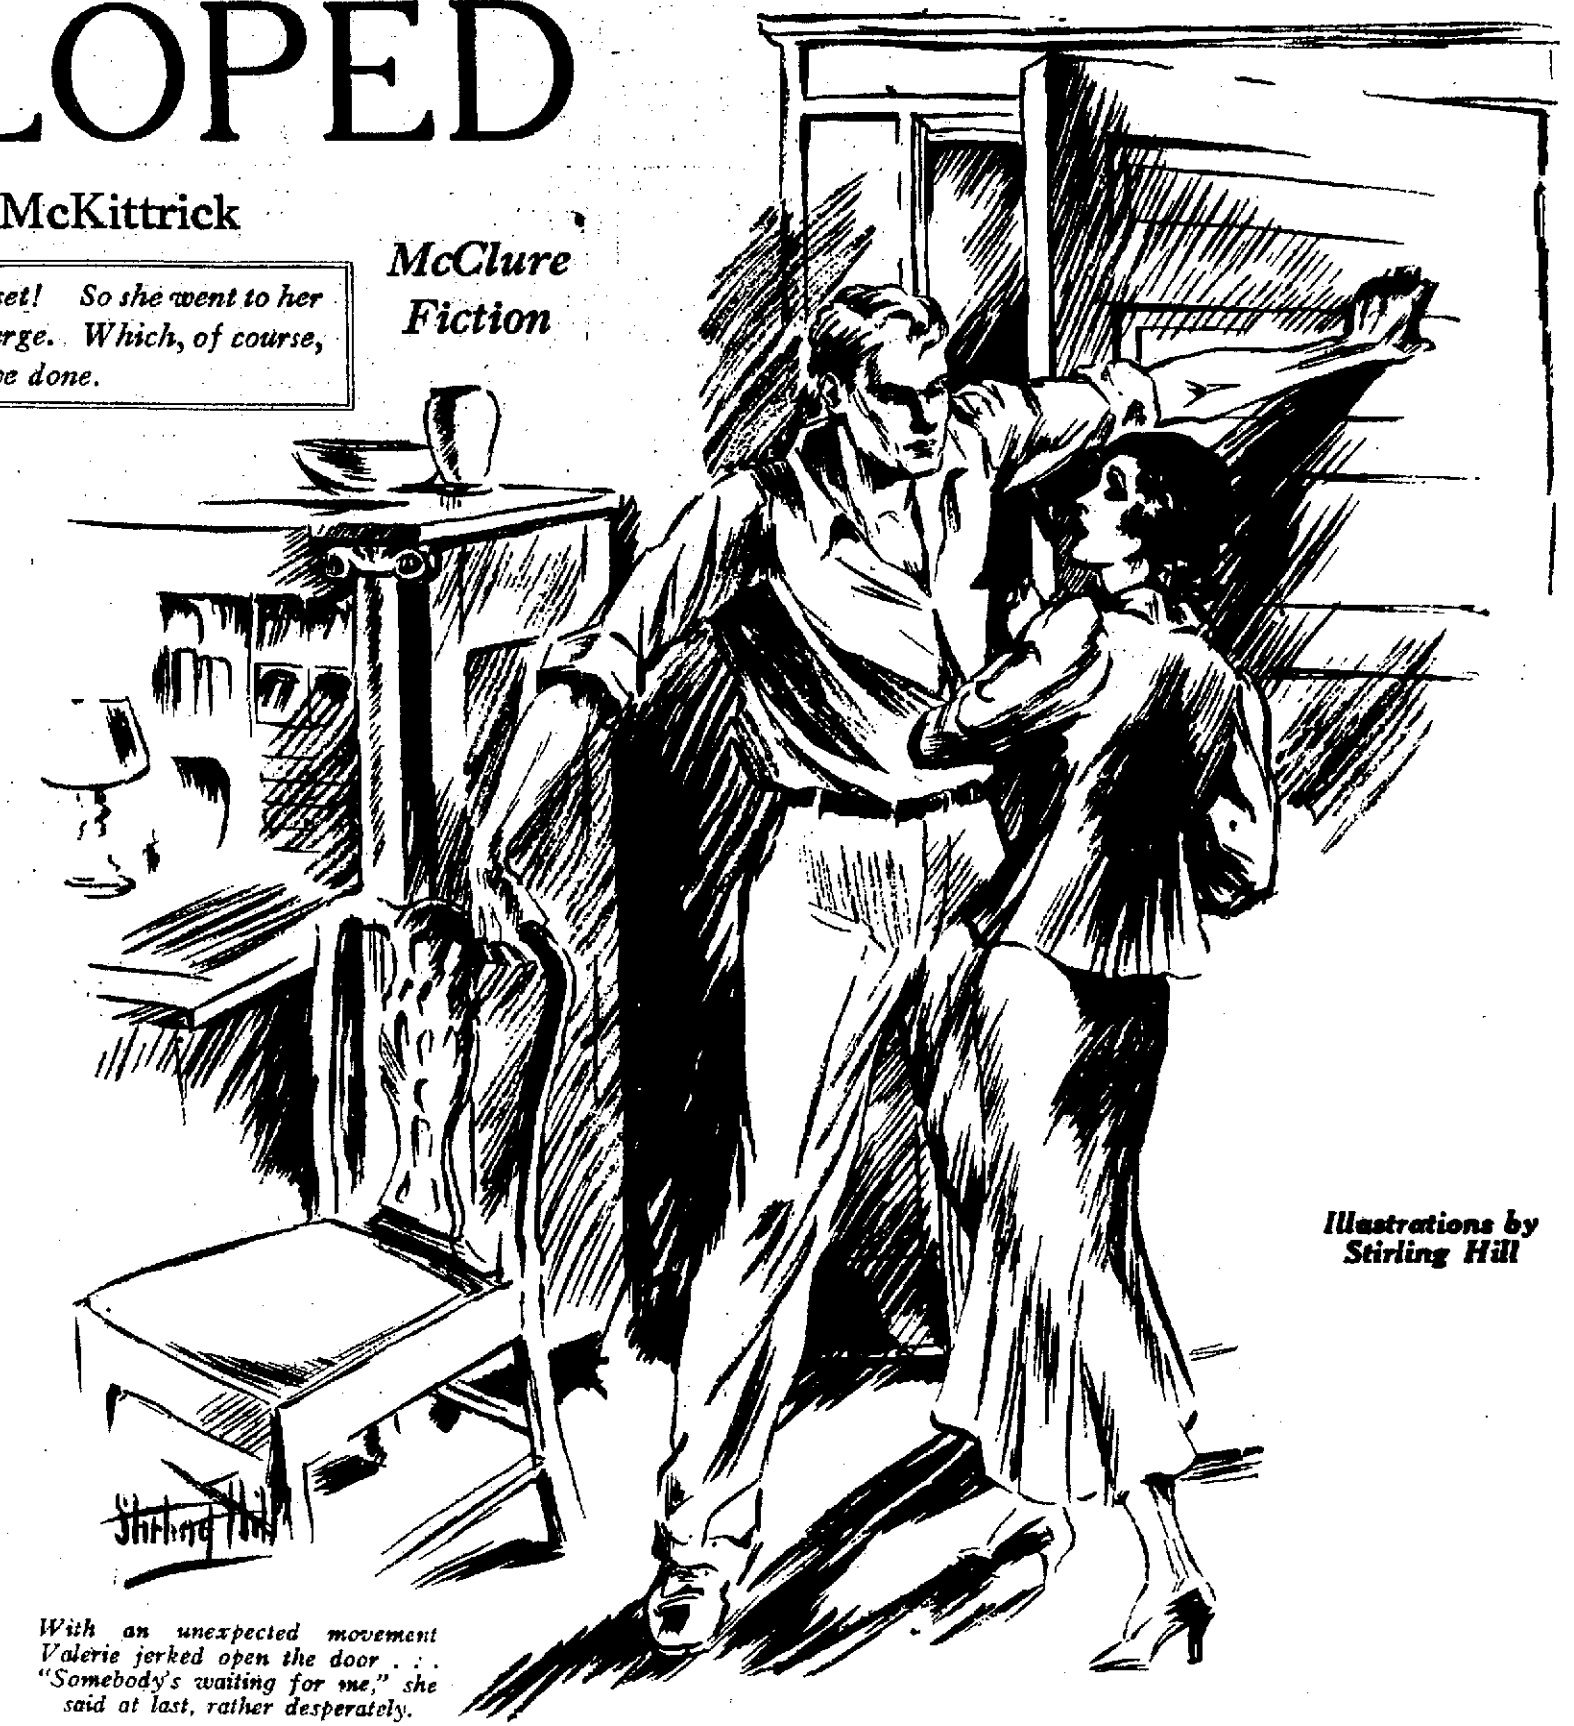

For a time she ate passively, seemingly lost in thought. Then she asked challengingly, "What next? You aren't going to object to my taking a short stroll, are you?"

A faint quiver of a smile touched her lips. "A walk after lunch is good for the digestion."

"We'll trust to luck on the digestion today. Won't you have more chipped beef?" Hopefully Jeremy extended the dish.

"I detest chipped beef. You'll let me take a nap?"

Jeremy helped himself to chipped beef. "Certainly, if you'll curl up on the sofa. I can't have you knotting sheets and escaping down the drain pipe."

Pushing back her plate Valerie set her elbows squarely on the table. "Just who are you?" Her eyes, he noted, were smoky black. "How do you happen to be my Guardian Angel?"

"Guardian Angels should be accepted, not questioned." Rising Jeremy began stacking the dishes. "Will you help clear the table? If you are contemplating matrimony as a career," he adopted a conversational tone, "I'd advise a little practical experience in housework. These days comparatively few men can provide maids for their wives. For instance if you married me you'd be expected to cook and sew, wash dishes, scrub—"

"Not scrub!" she protested. "I wouldn't scrub."

He turned to smile at her. "Are you considering the proposition?"

"It hasn't been offered yet." She picked up the bread plate and was following him into the kitchen when he stopped her.

"Whether you're applying or not I'd suggest that you carry something in each hand. It saves steps. Bring in the sugar bowl."

Silently they washed and dried the dishes.

"By the way," said Valerie as she closed the cupboard door, "Ed Bower has my bag in his car. Perhaps I'd better get it."

"I'll get it for you."

Jeremy untied his apron and hung it on a peg. "While you wait here. And don't get a bright idea and lock me out because if you do I'll spend a peaceful afternoon on the front porch—and I'm working by the hour."

In a Ford parked half-way down the block Jeremy found an impatient youth with red hair and Valerie's hatbox; and after a short conversation with this gentleman Jeremy returned with the bag, which he presented to its owner.

Jeremy had resumed overalls and his normal occupation when he was startled by a surprising apparition. A gay little figure in scarlet pajamas, robe and slippers announced, "I'm ready for my nap," and curled up on the sofa. Turning his back upon the sofa Jeremy immersed himself in the pursuit of his vocation, but without his former tranquility. The girl on the sofa was making no effort to court sleep. Jeremy knew instinctively that her steady dark eyes were fixed upon him. He could feel them . . .

ONCE the phone rang, and after a short curt interview with someone who was undoubtedly Ed Bower, Valerie returned to the sofa and her contemplation of Jeremy.

Therefore he was relieved when it was time to say gruffly, "You'd better be getting into your apron. Your mother expects you to prepare dinner."

Valerie yawned daintily. (Jeremy thought the pose out of character.) "What am I to prepare?"

"Steak and artichokes—"

"What are artichokes?"

"Vegetables. Your mother told me to order vegetables, and I ordered 'em. Spinach, cauliflower, onions, carrots—" The prospective cook had fled.

At five o'clock Jeremy (in street attire) peeked into the kitchen to find a demure ginghamed figure paring potatoes. Quietly he tiptoed down the hall until he came face to face with a young woman who had just entered the house. Her keyring hung loose in her hand as she stared at Jeremy.

"Well, Susan," said the man, "I understand you've eloped."

"Eloped?" A faint flush tinted the thin aristocratic features of Susan Marlowe. "What are you talking about? And what are you doing here?"

"I'm the major domo—the good fairy—what you will, and I work by the hour. Look out," he warned. "Wet paint. I came here to paint, but your mother preferred having me investigate your elopement. I phoned a Mr. Charles Mumford—"

"Jeremy," Susan Marlowe's voice was shrunk, pale, "you're trying to be funny—"

"Look at this." Solemnly the painter extracted from his pocket a note which she read with incredulity.

"But it isn't mine! Even if it isn't signed Mother should have known it was Valerie's. Besides," Susan was suddenly bitter, "she should have known I hadn't the spunk!"

"I still remember your refined script—I haven't roomed with Bill Evans for nothing. However that may be, the way things stand your mother thinks you're married. Why don't you elope—now?"

"Please—Please don't." But though she protested against the monstrous suggestion that same monstrous suggestion might have been a charm which changed in a twinkling a severe young woman into a startled girl thrilling and glowing, delightfully confused at the bare thought of the thing he advised. "Mother would—"

"Mother's playing bridge." Susan was unconvinced. "Ever since Father died Mother's said it would kill her if we left her."

"But it hasn't killed her! It hasn't caused her to cancel an engagement!"

"But—she hates Bill—"

"She'd hate any man who wanted to marry you. Susan, a mother's wishes should be respected only when she is a mother—not a selfish woman with no love for her children. Bill's my best friend. I've watched you two . . . You were beautiful in love, Susan; Bill was magnificent. I've seen you waiting endlessly, hopelessly. Susan, when you came in that door you were a bitter, thwarted—spinster. Now at the thought of marrying Bill you're growing lovelier—more desirable every minute."

Something leaped in the girl's eyes; her body seemed to tremble with new life. "But Valerie—"

The major domo—good fairy—interrupted. "Don't worry, I'm taking care of Valerie."

"Jeremy," said Susan breathlessly, "you're a darling really!" And for the first time in five years she did a deliciously reckless thing. She kissed Jeremy and laughing at his astonishment, fled.

DID you say you were working by the hour?"

It was Valerie who asked the question: Valerie still a trifle defiant. "I cut myself on those old potatoes, though I don't suppose you care." Protectively she nursed the injured finger.

But before Jeremy could offer condolences her mood changed. Her eyes were stormy as she said, "I'm glad for Susan—but why didn't you let me go? You know what Mother's like. You fairly pushed Susan into Bill's arms—and kept me here feeding me chipped beef! I'd have been happy with Ed—or anyway I couldn't have been as miserable as I am now!" A tear slid to the end of her lashes.

"It's been awful—since my father died. I came back for his picture. I couldn't go without it." Desperately she tried to wink back the tear; then wiped it off with the back of her hand. "Why didn't you let me go?"

"Because," Jeremy was very gentle with her, "I thought you were too young to know your own mind. That is I didn't believe you really loved this Ed Bower—"

"I'm twenty," said Valerie sturdily.

"Thank goodness! I was afraid you were only seventeen. Now I won't have to wait so long before you're old enough to know your own mind. You see, Valerie," happily Jeremy leaned against his ladder, "I want you for myself!"

Ruth, Foxx And Ott In Race For Home Run Mark

New Ball Produces Many Healthy Wallops; Pitchers Are Worried This Year

PIRATES HAND REDS DEFEAT

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Apparently Babe Ruth had the right hunch when he said Jimmy Foxx might set up a new home run mark this year. Bill Terry also must have known something about the amount of rabbit in the new ball when he intimated that little Mel Ott might surpass both Ruth and Foxx.

Today Babe has already made three homers, Foxx four and Ott five. At his present speed Mel would make 77 for the season. Either home runs are coming easier this season or the pitching is much softer in spots.

There is no doubt the pitching has been decidedly spotty. One day we see a Hubbell or a Warnerke turning in a sensational performance and the next we get a look at a parade of Philly and Dodger throwers.

Ruth's homer off Weiland gave the Yanks their 3 to 2 margin over the Red Sox yesterday but Foxx's fourth round trip sock went for naught when Joe Cronin's hit in the ninth gave the Senators a 7 to 6 decision over the Athletics.

More than 30,000 turned out in Detroit to see the home team walloped by the Indians 7 to 1. Hildebrand and Lloyd Brown holding the Tigers to half a dozen hits.

Big Jim Weaver held the White Sox to four hits while the rest of the Brownies pounded out a 6 to 2 victory to keep the Sox in the cellar.

Pirates Win. Nor did two homers by Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs save Pat Malone from taking a 9 to 4 drubbing from the Cardinals.

Red Lucas, now a Pirate in good standing, trimmed his old buddies, the Reds, 9 to 3, in a woody game in which four men hit homers, and the Phillys and Dodgers staged one of those comical affairs for which they are noted, the Dodgers staggering in, 8 to 7. Only nine pitchers took part in this one, which is about par for those two outfits, and Frank Pearce, the disappearing Philly, had the defeat chalked up to him. No wonder he wanted to flee from the Phillys.

It's going to be a night of nights for New Castle. A sea of color at Taggart field. Three or four bands to help liven the occasion. Drills by the New Castle high girls. Tickets For Big Sport's Festival Placed On Sale

Prices for all seats for The Sports' Festival on Friday evening is 50 cents for adults. This price is in effect for every seat in the concrete stands as well as the bleacher seats.

For the information of those contemplating attending The Sports' Festival, we might explain the system of numbering the seats. Sections Three and Four include the middle section seats that is the seats on the fifty yard line. For example seat one in section Three and seat one in section Four are exactly on the fifty yard line. Starting with seat number one, the seats in section Three run North. In section number Four the seats start with number one and run South. This means that seat number, say ten in section Three is 10 seats North of the 50 yard line and seat number 10 in section Four is 10 seats South of the fifty yard line.

These reserved seats will be on sale at Sporting Goods Store, Love & Megown's, Castleton Hotel, Leslie

Pirates Win In Sunday Game At Pittsburgh 9-5

Crowd Of 20,000 Sees First Legalized Sunday Baseball Game At Forbes Field

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 30.—With ideal spring weather smiling down upon them, the Pittsburgh Pirates meeting Chicago Cubs today at Forbes Field, hoped to duplicate the defeat 20,000 fans saw them hand the Cincinnati Reds in the first Sunday professional baseball game ever played here.

Yesterday's game here ended 9-5 in the Buccaneers favor.

Facing his former teammates, Fred Lucas, red-haired hurling ace making his debut in the Buccaneers pitching box, yielded nine safe blows while his new comrades picked out a total of 12 drives.

Subr Hits Homer. Gus Suhr and Paul Waner registered two homers for the Pirates while Ivy Shiver, the Reds right fielder, and Sylvester Johnson, relief twirler for Cincinnati, were responsible for two others which sailed over the left barrier.

Subr also smacked out a three-sacker to the left field fence and Lloyd Waner collected a trio of hits.

Plan For Baseball At New Wilmington

College Town Will Be Represented By Strong Nine. This Year

With "Red" Anderson, former Westminster athlete, back again in the role of manager, the New Wilmington club is engaging in extensive drills on the upper diamond in preparation for the season which, according to authorities will open soon.

Tom Hutchison, veteran infielder of last year's club, is engaging in spring drill with the Coaltown nine and will probably not be playing a great deal for the local club this year. With other reserve material available in the shape of Eagleson, Patterson, Wettich, Axe, Rose, Lawther, and Chapin, Anderson is decidedly optimistic as to the outcome of the season. Jon Campbell, Eagleson, and Patterson, will be available for mound duty and should bolster up the outfit which is notoriously weak at the bat. Darrell, a newcomer from Bethel, will probably see action behind the plate.

All teams desiring games should get in touch with Anderson at the earliest possible date to arrange a tentative schedule.

New Wilmington Hi Will Open Season

Coach Whitman Announces Lineup For Game With East Brook

Walt Whitman, mentor of the New Wilmington high school baseball nine, announces his tentative lineup in a statement issued today. Duncan, former South Side hurler from New Castle will toe the mound in the initial fray carded with Eastbrook this week. Whitman has not yet decided who will back Duncan up but either McCaslin or Gibson will get the call. Weber, former veteran of the local nine, will cover the territory around first base, while Eagleson will be on shortstop, with Borowitz and Axe alternating on the "hot corner". Roaming outfield will be Clark, A. Axe, and Patton. Davis, veteran fielder broke his ankle in the second day of practice and will be lost to the local club for the remainder of the year.

This will be the first team to represent New Wilmington high school in three years and the local lad, aided by Whitman, former hurler of repute in Northwestern Pennsylvania, should prove a constant threat to all county clubs. Inclement weather conditions forced the locals to postpone games with Eastbrook and Princeton this week and the boys are eager to get into harness.

Titans Will Have Intra-Mural Track

Varsity Track Athletics To Be Replaced At Westminster For Season

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 30.—Intra-mural track will replace varsity track on the schedule this spring at Westminster College, the athletic council has decided. Two meets are planned for May, R. X. Graham, coach, announces. On May 11, a 10-events track meet in which five fraternity teams will be represented will be held. The events are: 100, 220, 440, 880, mile, high jump, broad jump, shot put, discus, and javelin.

Five fraternities will also enter relay teams in the relay meet to be held May 16. It is possible that a half-mile relay, each man running 220 yards, will be held as well as a mile relay, with each man running 440 yards.

Last year the intra-mural track activities attracted 60 men students, and it is thought that a larger number will complete this year.

Madison Square Garden Change Appears Likely

Several Well Known Boxing Promoters Are After Job Of Handling Baer-Carnera Fight

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 30.—Col. John S. Hammond, a gentleman with silver hair and golden backing, has until two o'clock this afternoon to take up an option on the controlling interest in Madison Square Garden. That's one of the things that will be decided down in Wall Street today during an important business meeting, the exact nature of which I do not know. However, the average business meeting down there nowadays extends certain assurances to the individual. No matter what happens, one can always comfort himself with the feeling that he has been pushed around by aristocrats.

May Oust Two. Among other things supposed to be passed upon is the proposed hurling of James J. Johnston and Col. John R. Kilpatrick out upon their countenances and the establishing of a new set up for the Baer-Carnera fight, although this is strictly surmise.

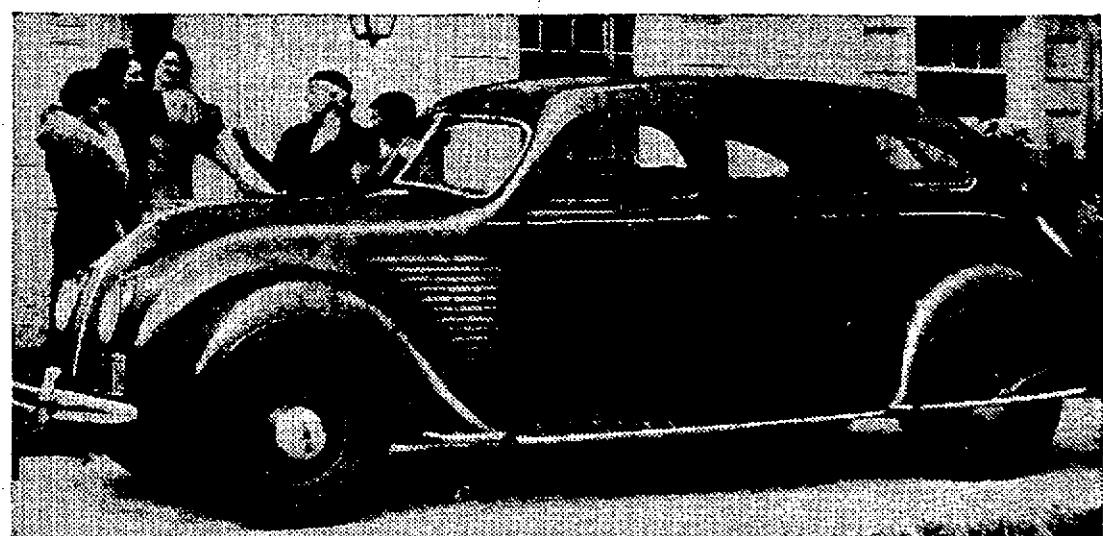

So is the story that George Blake, Jimmy Bronson, Jack Curley and Tom McArdle are being considered as the New Deal's candidate for boxing promoter.

This is a transaction involving the immediate payment of $800,000 and I don't think anybody is impressed right now with the importance of hiring or firing an employee who makes $15,000 a year.

Ruth, Foxx And Ott In Race For Home Run Mark

PIRATES HAND REDS DEFEAT

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Apparently Babe Ruth had the right hunch when he said Jimmy Foxx might set up a new home run mark this year. Bill Terry also must have known something about the amount of rabbit in the new ball when he intimated that little Mel Ott might surpass both Ruth and Foxx.

Today Babe has already made three homers, Foxx four and Ott five. At his present speed Mel would make 77 for the season. Either home runs are coming easier this season or the pitching is much softer in spots.

There is no doubt the pitching has been decidedly spotty. One day we see a Hubbell or a Warneke turning in a sensational performance and the next we get a look at a parade of Philly and Dodger throwers.

Ruth Hits Homer.
Ruth's homer off Weiland gave the Yanks their 3 to 2 margin over the Red Sox yesterday but Foxx's fourth round trip sock went for naught when Joe Cronin's hit in the ninth gave the Senators a 7 to 6 decision over the Athletics.

More than 30,000 turned out in Detroit to see the home team walloped by the Indians 7 to 1. Hildebrand and Lloyd Brown holding the Tigers to half a dozen hits.

Big Jim Weaver held the White Sox to four hits while the rest of the Browns pounded out a 6 to 2 victory to keep the Sox in the cellar.

Neither Ott's fifth homer nor his two doubles could save the Giants from a 6-4 drubbing at the hands of the Braves.

Pirates Win.
Nor did two homers by Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs save Pat Malone from taking a 9 to 4 drubbing from the Cardinals.

Red Lucas, now a Pirate in good standing, trimmed his old buddies, the Reds, 9 to 5, in a woody game in which four men hit homers, and the Phillies and Dodgers staged one of those comical affairs for which they are noted, the Dodgers staggering in, 8 to 7. Only nine pitchers took part in this one, which is about par for those two outfits, and Frank Pearce, the disappearing Philly, had the defeat chalked up to him. No wonder he wanted to flee from the Phillies.

Sports' Festival On Friday Night

Hundreds Will Take Part In Gigantic Sports' Festival; New Castle-Erie To Clash

Friday night will be the big night as far as New Castle is concerned. Taggart field should be jammed to the doors for the gigantic Sports' Festival that will be staged by hundreds of young athletes in the various schools of the city. In conjunction with this event the New Castle high school "Red Hurricane" football team will play Erie Academy high in a spring game.

This big double attraction has never been equalled in New Castle. Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner is making every effort to have at least 10,000 fans attend the festival. The price is right at fifty cents for all seats. Students for 25 cents and children for 10 cents.

New Backfield.
Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh will put the finishing touches on the "Red Hurricane" this week and hopes to have a strong eleven to present to the fans for their approval. The 1934 edition seems to compare favorably with the other great teams Bridenbaugh has turned out. The fans will be interested in how the new backfield functions. It's going to be a night of nights for New Castle. A sea of color at Taggart field. Three or four bands to help liven the occasion. Drills by the New Castle high girls. Franklin and Washington junior highs will send the cream of their athletes to Taggart field for exhibitions.

Tickets For Big Sport's Festival Placed On Sale

Prices for all seats for The Sports' Festival on Friday evening is 50 cents for adults. This price is in effect for every seat in the concrete stands as well as the bleacher seats. For the information of those contemplating attending The Sports' Festival, we might explain the system of numbering the seats. Sections Three and Four include the middle section seats that is the seats on the fifty yard line. For example seat one in section Three and seat one in section Four are exactly on the fifty yard line. Starting with seat number one, the seats in section Three run North. In section number Four the seats start with number one and run South. This means that seat number, say ten in section Three is 10 seats North of the 50 yard line and seat number 10 in section Four is 10 seats South of the fifty yard line.

These reserved seats will be on sale at Sporting Goods Store, Love & Megown's, Castleton Hotel, Leslie

Pirates Win In Sunday Game At Pittsburgh 9-5

Crowd Of 20,000 Sees First Legalized Sunday Baseball Game At Forbes Field

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 30.—With ideal spring weather smiling down upon them, the Pittsburgh Pirates, meeting Chicago Cubs today at Forbes Field, hoped to duplicate the defeat 20,000 fans saw them hand the Cincinnati Reds in the first Sunday professional baseball game ever played here.

Yesterday's game here ended 9-5 in the Buccaneers favor. Facing his former teammates, Fred Lucas, red-haired hurling ace making his debut in the Buccaneers pitching box, yielded nine safe blows while his new comrades picked out a total of 12 drives.

Suhr Hits Homer.
Gus Suhr and Paul Waner registered two homers for the Pirates while Ivy Shiver, the Reds right fielder, and Sylvester Johnson, relief twirler for Cincinnati, were responsible for two others which sailed over the left barrier.

Suhr also smacked out a three-sacker to the left field fence and Lloyd Waner collected a trio of hits. Hal Smith may be Gibby's choice today, likely opposed by Southpaw Roy Joiner on the mound for the Cubs.

Plan For Baseball At New Wilmington

College Town Will Be Represented By Strong Nine This Year

With "Red" Anderson, former Westminster athlete, back again in the role of manager, the New Wilmington club is engaging in extensive drills on the upper diamond in preparation for the season which, according to authorities will open soon.

Tom Hutchison, veteran infielder of last year's club, is engaging in spring drill with the Coalstown nine and will probably not be playing a great deal for the local club this year. With other reserve material available in the shape of Eagleson, Patterson, Wettich, Axe, Rose, Lawther, and Chapin, Anderson is decidedly optimistic as to the outcome of the season. Jones, Campbell, Eagleson, and Patterson, will be available for mound duty and should bolster up the outfit which is notoriously weak at the bat. Darrell, a newcomer from Bethel, will probably see action behind the plate.

All teams desiring games should get in touch with Anderson at the earliest possible date to arrange a tentative schedule.

New Wilmington Hi Will Open Season

Coach Whitman Announces Lineup For Game With East Brook

Walt Whitman, mentor of the New Wilmington high school baseball nine, announces his tentative lineup in a statement issued today. Duncan, former South Side hurler from New Castle will toe the mound in the initial fray carded with Eastbrook this week. Whitman has not yet decided who will back Duncan up but either McCaslin or Gibson will get the call. Weber, former veteran of the local nine, will cover the territory around first base, Gibson is slated to cover the second base, while Eagleson will be on shortstop, with Borowitz and Axe alternating on the "hot corner". Roaming outfield will be Clark, A. Axe, and Patton. Davis, veteran fielder broke his ankle in the second day of practice and will be lost to the local club for the remainder of the year.

This will be the first team to represent New Wilmington high school in three years and the local lads, aided by Whitman, former hurler of repute in Northwestern Pennsylvania, should prove a constant threat to all county clubs. Inclement weather conditions forced the locals to postpone games with Eastbrook and Princeton this week and the boys are eager to get into harness.

Titans Will Have Intra-Mural Track

Varsity Track Athletics To Be Replaced At Westminster For Season

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 30.—Intra-mural track will replace varsity track on the schedule this spring at Westminster College, the athletic council has decided.

Two meets are planned for May, R. X. Graham, coach, announces. On May 11, a 10-events track meet in which five fraternity teams will be represented, will be held. The events are: 100, 220, 440, 880, mile, high jump, broad jump, shot put, discus, and javelin.

Five fraternities will also enter relay teams in the relay meet to be held May 16. It is possible that a half-mile relay, each man running 220 yards, will be held as well as a mile relay, with each man running 440 yards.

Last year the intra-mural track activities attracted 60 men students, and it is thought that a larger number will compete this year.

NEW YORK, April 30.—Apparently Babe Ruth had the right hunch when he said Jimmy Foxx might set up a new home run mark this year. Bill Terry also must have known something about the amount of rabbit in the new ball when he intimated that little Mel Ott might surpass both Ruth and Foxx.

Today Babe has already made three homers, Foxx four and Ott five. At his present speed Mel would make 77 for the season. Either home runs are coming easier this season or the pitching is much softer in spots.

There is no doubt the pitching has been decidedly spotty. One day we see a Hubbell or a Warneke turning in a sensational performance and the next we get a look at a parade of Philly and Dodger throwers.

Ruth Hits Homer.
Ruth's homer off Weiland gave the Yanks their 3 to 2 margin over the Red Sox yesterday but Foxx's fourth round trip sock went for naught when Joe Cronin's hit in the ninth gave the Senators a 7 to 6 decision over the Athletics.

More than 30,000 turned out in Detroit to see the home team walloped by the Indians 7 to 1. Hildebrand and Lloyd Brown holding the Tigers to half a dozen hits.

Big Jim Weaver held the White Sox to four hits while the rest of the Brownies pounded out a 6 to 2 victory to keep the Sox in the cellar.

Neither Ott's fifth homer nor his two doubles could save the Giants from a 6-4 drubbing at the hands of the Braves.

Pirates Win.
Nor did two homers by Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs save Pat Malone from taking a 9 to 4 drubbing from the Cardinals.

Red Lucas, now a Pirate in good standing, trimmed his old buddies, the Reds, 9 to 5, in a woody game in which four men hit homers, and the Phillies and Dodgers staged one of those comical affairs for which they are noted, the Dodgers staggering in, 8 to 7. Only nine pitchers took part in this one, which is about par for those two outfits, and Frank Pearce, the disappearing Philly, had the defeat chalked up to him. No wonder he wanted to flee from the Phillies.

Corbett Favored To Defeat Terry

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Young Corbett 111, Fresno, Calif., former welterweight champion, was 10 to 7 favorite to defeat Young Terry, Trenton, N. J., "buzzsaw" in their scheduled ten round bout here tonight.

Sports' Festival On Friday Night

Hundreds Will Take Part In Gigantic Sports' Festival; New Castle-Erie To Clash

Friday night will be the big night as far as New Castle is concerned. Taggart field should be jammed to the doors for the gigantic Sports' Festival that will be staged by hundreds of young athletes in the various schools of the city. In conjunction with the event the New Castle high school "Red Hurricane" football team will play Erie Academy high in a spring game.

This big double attraction has never been equalled in New Castle. Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner is making every effort to have at least 10,000 fans attend the Festival. The price is right at fifty cents for all seats. Students for 25 cents and children for 10 cents.

New Backfield.
Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh will put the finishing touches on the "Red Hurricane" this week and hopes to have a strong eleven to present to the fans for their approval. The 1934 edition seems to compare favorably with the other great teams Bridenbaugh has turned out. The fans will be interested in how the new backfield functions. It's going to be a night of nights for New Castle. A sea of color at Taggart field. Three or four bands to help liven the occasion. Drills by the New Castle high girls, Franklin and Washington junior high will send the cream of their athletes to Taggart field for exhibitions.

Tickets For Big Sport's Festival Placed On Sale

Prices for all seats for The Sports' Festival on Friday evening is 50 cents for adults. This price is in effect for every seat in the concrete stands as well as the bleacher seats. For the information of those contemplating attending The Sports' Festival, we might explain the system of numbering the seats. Sections Three and Four include the middle section seats that is the seats on the fifty yard line. For example seat one in section Three and seat one in section Four are exactly on the fifty yard line. Starting with seat number one, the seats in section Three run North. In section number Four the seats start with number one and run South. This means that seat number, say ten in section Three is 10 seats North of the 50 yard line and seat number 10 in section Four is 10 seats South of the fifty yard line.

These reserved seats will be on sale at Sporting Goods Store, Love & Megown's, Castleton Hotel, Leslie

Pitt relay team of Kiger, McDonald, Connelly and Keller captured the Class B mile relay in 3:20.8 in the Penn relays.

Led by Francis Ouimet the U. S. Walker cup team left the U. S. yesterday and plan to practice today on the famous St. Andrews golf course.

Pirates Win In Sunday Game At Pittsburgh 9-5

Crowd Of 20,000 Sees First Legalized Sunday Baseball Game At Forbes Field

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 30.—With ideal spring weather smiling down upon them, the Pittsburgh Pirates, meeting Chicago Cubs today at Forbes Field, hoped to duplicate the defeat 20,000 fans saw them hand the Cincinnati Reds in the first Sunday professional baseball game ever played here.

Yesterday's game here ended 9-5 in the Buccaneers' favor.

Facing his former teammates, Fred Lucas, red-haired hurling ace making his debut in the Buccaneers pitching box, yielded nine safe blows while his new comrades picked out a total of 12 drives.

Suhr Hits Homer.

Gus Suhr and Paul Waner registered two homers for the Pirates while Ivy Shiver, the Reds' right fielder, and Sylvester Johnson, relief twirler for Cincinnati, were responsible for two others which sailed over the left barrier.

Suhr also smacked out a three-sacker to the left field fence and Lloyd Waner collected a trio of hits. Hal Smith may be Gibby's choice today, likely opposed by Southpaw Roy Joiner on the mound for the Cubs.

Plan For Baseball At New Wilmington

College Town Will Be Represented By Strong Nine. This Year

With "Red" Anderson, former Westminster athlete, back again in the role of manager, the New Wilmington club is engaging in extensive drills on the upper diamond in preparation for the season which, according to authorities will open soon.

Tom Hutchison, veteran infielder of last year's club, is engaging in spring drill with the Coasttown nine and will probably not be playing a great deal for the local club this year. With other reserve material available in the shape of Eagleson, Patterson, Wetlich, Axe, Rose, Lawther, and Chapin, Anderson is decidedly optimistic as to the outcome of the season. Jones, Campbell, Eagleson, and Patterson, will be available for mound duty and should bolster out the outfit which is notoriously weak at the bat. Darrell, a newcomer from Bethel, will probably see action behind the plate.

All teams desiring games should get in touch with Anderson at the earliest possible date to arrange a tentative schedule.

WILL TAKE PRECAUTION

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 30.—Anticipating no "trouble," Pittsburgh police, nevertheless, will be ready to handle any radical May Day demonstrations tomorrow. Ben R. Marshall, superintendent, announced today.

New Wilmington Hi Will Open Season

Coach Whitman Announces Lineup For Game With East Brook

Walt Whitman, mentor of the New Wilmington high school baseball nine, announces his tentative lineup in a statement issued today. Duncan, former South Side hurler from New Castle will toe the mound in the initial fray carded with Eastbrook this week. Whitman has not yet decided who will back Duncan up but either McCaslin or Gibson will get the call. Weber, former veteran of the local nine, will cover the territory around first base. Gibson is slated to cover the second base, while Eagleson will be on shortstop, with Borowitz and Axe alternating on the "hot corner". Roaming outfield will be Clark, A. X. E. and Fulton. Davis, veteran fielder broke his ankle in the second day of practice and will be lost to the local club for the remainder of the year.

This will be the first team to represent New Wilmington high school in three years and the local lads, aided by Whitman, former hurler of repert in Northwestern Pennsylvania, should prove a constant threat to all county clubs. Inclement weather conditions forced the locals to postpone games with Eastbrook and Princeton this week and the boys are eager to get into harness.

Titans Will Have Intra-Mural Track

Varsity Track Athletics To Be Replaced At Westminster For Season

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 30.—Intra-mural track will replace varsity track on the schedule this spring at Westminster College, the athletic council has decided.

Two meets are planned for May. R. X. Graham, coach, announces. On May 11, a 10-events track meet in which five fraternity teams will be represented will be held. The events are: 100, 200, 440, 880, mile, high jump, broad jump, shot put, discus, and javelin.

Five fraternities will also enter relay teams in the relay meet to be held May 16. It is possible that a half-mile relay, each man running 200 yards, will be held as well as a mile relay, with each man running 440 yards.

Last year the intra-mural track activities attracted 60 men students, and it is thought that a larger number will compete this year.

Having a medicine ball bounced off his tummy and chest is one of the vigorous stunts undergone by Walter Neusel, blond German battler, who trains in Pompton Lakes, N. J., for his bout in New York, May 4, with Tommy Loughran, erstwhile heavyweight title contender.

Walker Cup Team To Hold Practice

(International News Service)
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, April 30.—The United States Walker cup golf squad, which arrived from the states last night, was to take its first practice here today. The Americans will play Britain's best amateur golfers here on May 11 and 12 in the eighth International series.

Madison Square Garden Change Appears Likely

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 30.—Col. John S. Hammond, a gentleman with silvery hair and golden backing, has until two o'clock this afternoon to take up an option on the controlling interest in Madison Square Garden. That's one of the things that will be decided down in Wall Street today during an important business meeting, the exact nature of which I do not know. However, the average business meeting down there nowadays extends certain assurances to the individual. No matter what happens, one can always comfort himself with the feeling that he has been pushed around by aristocrats.

May Oust Two.

Among other things supposed to be passed upon is the proposed hurling of James J. Johnston and Col. John R. Kilpatrick out upon their counterances and the establishing of a new set up for the Baer-Carnera fight, although this is strictly surmise.

So is the story that George Blake, Jimmy Bronson, Jack Curley and Tom McArdle are being considered as the New Deal's candidate for boxing promoter.

This is a transaction involving the immediate payment of $800,000 and I don't think anybody is impressed right now with the importance of hiring or firing an employee who makes $15,000 a year.

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., April 30.—In addition to varsity tennis for Westminster College this spring, Jack Hulme, director of intra-mural sports, announces that there will be an intra-mural league. Drills in preparation for the league playoffs will start May 1, and the schedule of matches will begin the second week of May, Hulme announces.

WELL, folks, your Fleetwing gasoline line dealer, Frank A. Dewberry is a grandpaw again. Imagine that, twice in a month. Frank has become a pop once a year for a good many years but this is the first time he has become a grandpaw twice in a month. Ain't nature grand! This time the stork visited Marjorie and left a 10-pound boy and the nurses at the Jameson are so proud of him that they are carrying him all over the place showing him off. Frank wanted to call him Tarzan but Marjorie refused that name, and is going to call him Frank. We will give a suitable prize to the one who first guesses who the ten-pound baby doll was named after. 11-6
